The Jackal Bites
A Pittsburgh Straw
Harvard's Bad Example
Labor 50c, Capital $6

After two lions have been fighting and are thoroughly exhausted, and disgusted with fighting, a jackal might walk up and safely bite them both.

That's happening in Europe. Turkey once humbly took orders from anybody west of the Balkans. Now Turkey dictates to Europe terms on which she will consent not to take Constantinople and divide Russia control of the eastern entrance to the Mediterranean.

From giving curt, imperative orders to Turkey, the great lions of Europe have changed to a pleading tone. They don't want to fight any more and ask Turkey please to leave Constantinople alone, taking in return some other slice of Europe.

The answer of the Turks is active preparation for the seizing of Constantinople, with an intimation that our beloved American missionaries are not wanted on Turkish territory, and that Christians and Armenians will be requested to get out.

One story from Moscow says that Russia will give "moral support" to Turkey, but no troops. The London Times believes the Bolsheviki have been sending large quantities of gold and precious stones to pay the Turkish army. That beats "moral support" by many miles.

Russia, like the rest of the world, would like to get along without any more war and build up for a while. But if a little help would put Turkey into Constantinople, worry the Allies and make them less casual in their treatment of Russia, that would suit the Soviet government.

Last night's news was that eight nations in Europe were consulting about the Turkish situation, the Turks meanwhile going ahead. One little straw showing how the wind blows is supplied by Pittsburgh. Charles Rowe, professional, teaches Pittsburgh's Oakmount Country Club to play golf. Rowe, veteran of the Canadian army, is notified by wire to hold himself in readiness for foreign service. That looks "like business."

Harvard sets a bad example, puts to candidates for admission questions that show contempt for Constitutional guarantee concerning race and religion.

Fortunately, what Jews want from Harvard is EDUCATION, not a chance to meet sons of rich gentlemen. And Harvard hasn't power to keep education from anybody that really wants it.

Education is in books. Any man studying at home for four years, going as rapidly as his brain can go, instead of tiring himself to the regulated, slower university gait, will show a great deal more at the end of four years than ninety-nine per cent. of Harvard graduates.

Let the young Jew not worry about Harvard, but consider the case of Alexander the Great and stop worrying. If Phillip had sent Alexander to Athens, the young man would have acquired the Athenian accent, and much polish, and probably never would have been Alexander.

His father knew enough to bring Aristotle from Athens to Macedonia. It was Aristotle's private teaching that made the real Alexander. Of universities you may say what the French say of "voyages," that "they form youth, when they do not DEFORM."

In New York the price of anthracite coal is fixed at $13.25, about $4 more than before the war. Miners' wages have increased since the war fifty cents a ton. The mine owner's increase is six dollars a ton.

Would you rather be a mine worker or a mine owner? Has the mine worker or mine owner more influence with the powers that be?

They get out an injunction to prevent a mine worker from leaving his work to get more pay. They never get any injunction to keep owners of mines from adding to the price of coal twelve times the amount of the increased cost of labor. This is a republic. What would they do if it were an autocracy?

BROKER SEEKING CHILDREN

Believes Wife Fled With Them to Cape; She Plans to Press Divorce Suit

"Win" Perry has asked the police of Rockland, Framingham, Boston and elsewhere to find his children.

The kidnaping and subsequent disappearance of the boys marks the latest development in the love triangle which has stirred to the depths exclusive society circles even as greatly as the finding of love letters written by his father, Alonzo W. Perry, to Mrs. Mabel Herrick.

Did Mrs. Winthrop W. Perry steal the children from their father after he had kidnaped them from her while she was in Framingham police station charged with violation of the trus name law?

Is the wife of the wealthy Rockland realty operator and son of Boston's largest tax payer—the woman who spurned him for her handsome chauffeur, Clarence S. Damon—with he boys, Winthrop, jr., and Francis, somewhere in Plymouth?

CLAWS AND BITES BIG ATTACKER

Girl's Screams Frighten Thug in Attempt to Assault Her

Richburg, Sept. 21.—Fighting like a wildcat, using her fingernails, her fists and her teeth, a slim twenty-year-old girl today routed a mammoth Finn, twice her weight and nearly twice her size.

The fight occurred in the handsome home of Fred M. Dillon, president of the Dillon Boiler Works, and one of the wealthiest men in Fitchburg. Into the beautiful setting of the library of the Dillon home there staggered Richard Lundi, ex-convict, inflamed with gin and the sight of the beautiful young girl who sat there, reading. She was Miss Dorothy Dillon, daughter of the house, and one of the most popular young women in town.

With the exception of some servants in the upper part of the residence, Dorothy was alone. With his latent clearly written in his bloodshot eyes, Lundi, known as the town desperado, clapped his hands over the girl's mouth to prevent an outcry.

SEIZED BY THROAT.

Then began a battle which lasted for nearly quarter of an hour.

The best account of the strange struggle comes from Miss Dillon herself, as told to a reporter for the Boston American:

"I never had such a feeling come over me in my life when I saw the form of that big man, crouchingly approaching me as I was reading the newspaper in the library of our home.

"My first thought was that it might have been some man friend who had called to see my brother.

TARIFF BILL IS SIGNED

Act Approved by President Harding to Go in Effect at Once

Washington, Sept. 21 (By International News Service).—President Harding signed the new Republican tariff bill today. The law will be known officially as the Tariff Act of 1922. It goes into effect at midnight tonight.

The bill was signed at the White House in the presence of Senator McCumber of North Dakota, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, Representative Fordney, the chairman, and other members of the House Ways and Means Committee.

The President wrote his signature with a gold fountain pen presented by Fordney, which the Michigan Congressman will retain as a souvenir.

"The bill was long in the making," the President is quoted as saying after he had signed his name, "but I hope we will succeed in making effective the elastic provision, the greatest contribution toward progress in tariff making in the nation's history."

The President made reference here to the provisions of the bill which gives the executive power to raise and lower tariff rates at will when it is found that the duties fixed in the law do not conform with changing economic conditions in the United States and abroad.

The new tariff act repeals the present Underwood tariff act and the emergency tariff act, which was placed on the statute books soon after the present administration came into power.

The dye embargo provided for in the emergency tariff law is repealed by the new permanent tariff.

At the Treasury Department it was stated that the annual revenue from the new tariff would average about between $350,000,000 and $400,000,000—approximately $100,000,000 in excess of the annual returns under the present tariff.

Rush to Withdraw Goods Before New Tariff Starts

New York, Sept. 21.—Customs brokers made haste today to withdraw merchandise from government warehouses before the new tariff rates become effective at midnight tonight.

Hundreds of brokers besieged the Custom House with inquiries for manifests of vessels due or a few hours overdue.

LYNN ABDUCTOR IS GUILTY

Henry E. Goodwin, fifty-nine, former janitor at the University of Maine, was found guilty of abduction and violating the true name law by Judge Ralph W. Reeves in the Lynn Court. He was fined $131 and given a one-year probation sentence.

Goodwin, it was charged, enticed Edna E. Merrill, aged thirteen, of Orono, Me., from the home of relatives in Saugus. He took her to the movies in Lynn and then secured rooms at a Lynn lodging house. The girl kept her door bolted during the night. In the morning she fled to Saugus. The girl was held as a neglected child.

MRS. PEASE CAST INTO SEA ALIVE

Solution of Mystery Hinges Largely on Belated Report of Medical Examiner Magrath

The police working on the Pease case are today nervously awaiting the long-delayed report of Medical Examiner George Burgess Magrath.

A great deal hinges on it. If Dr. Magrath reports that Mrs. Sabra Maude Pease committed suicide, it must mean the release of Arthur H. Pease, husband of the woman pulled out of the water off Winthrop Beach, now held without bail as the murderer of his wife.

The inquest will be held at the East Boston District Court Saturday.

Pending the report of the medical examiner a frantic search is being made for an ulster of the dead woman, upon the finding of which the police base their hope of holding Pease. Friends of the accused man have rallied to his support and it is admitted he is being held on slim evidence, which is entirely circumstantial.

According to a statement said to have been made by Dr. Magrath to the Revere police, Mrs. Pease was

MOVE TO CONSCRIPT LABOR AND INDUSTRY IN WAR

Washington, Sept. 21.—Aroused by President Harding's veto of the bonus bill, Representative Royal J. Johnston, Republican, of South Dakota, introduced a resolution in the House today providing for the immediate conscription of all industry and all labor immediately upon a declaration of war by the government. Johnston said if the government could conscript men without paying them adequately, then there was no reason why it should not conscript labor and industry on the same principle.

HOLD 2 IN SOUTH BOSTON ATTACK

Joseph Dusevich, 32, of No. 343 4th street and Dominic Gregolonces, 37, of No. 301½ Broadway, South Boston, were arrested on suspicion today and later identified as the two who assaulted and robbed John Wassell, No. 75 G street, late last night.

Wassell was robbed of $300 near the store owned by Dusevich.

3 DORCHESTER MEN FINED $50

David Seldman, Hyman Barnchick and Jacob Kirshner, all of No. 72 Lawrence street, Dorchester, were fined $50 each by Judge Churchill in the Dorchester Court today charged with violation of the liquor laws. Seldman appealed, the others paid.

On September 16, officers from Station 9, under Sergeant Walsh, raided No. 72 Lawrence street and seized twenty-eight gallons of mixed liquors, 250 pounds of brown sugar, 12 empty jugs, 4 pails, 4 handbags, 3 suitcases filled with empty pint bottles, 3 containers, 3 stills and 2 gas stoves.

POLICE AWAIT DR. MAGRATH'S REPORT; SEEK TO FIND MISSING ULSTER

not dead when her body fell or was thrown into the water.

Other major development today in the Short Beach mystery included:

Victim's hat and outer skirt are also missing. Vigorous search by the police failed to reveal any trace of them.

Admission made by Mrs. Pease to her step-daughter, Miss Maude Gillespie, graduate nurse, that her marriage to Pease was too hasty and that she regretted it.

Threat by counsel for Mrs. Brown to apply for a warrant against Pease because of the birth of the child.

Declaration by Mrs. Brown that while she no longer had any love for Pease she did not believe he had anything to do with the death of his wife.

Discovery of a slight cut on Mrs Pease's breast below the collar line, which, with the missing ulster, is held to strengthen the murder theory.

MAY HAVE DROWNED.

Growing sentiment among some of the officials that Mrs. Pease may have come to her death by suicide and that the evidence against her husband, who is a prisoner in Charles street jail, accused of her murder, is not as strong as the police would like.

Forecast today that Dr. McGrath will report that death was not due to the slash in her neck, but from drowning.

Finding of the missing ulster is expected by several of the police investigators to shed considerable light on the tragedy.

SEARCH HOME IN VAIN.

Mrs. Pease wore this ulster when visiting her mother Monday afternoon. It was made of black material with fine white stripes. The police ransacked the home of the dead woman, No. 145 Crescent avenue, and conducted a midnight search at the Summer cottage of her mother at No. 101 Upland road, Winthrop Highlands.

They were also unable to find the skirt which Mrs. Pease was accustomed to wear with the red sweater when she worked in the garden at her mother's home. When taken from the water, Mrs. Pease lacked an outer skirt and hat. A bone hair comb which she wore was found on the beach several yards from the body.

The investigators are anxious to find the ulster, if possible, to determine if it is bloodstained. If spattered with blood, the garment would strengthen the murder theory. Certain officials are of the opinion that Mrs. Pease was murdered in or near her home and her body carried at night and thrown into the sea from a nearby bluff. They think that the missing ulster may have been used as a shroud in disposing of the woman's body.

The most damaging bit of evidence against Pease to date is a cut on Mrs. Pease's breast which was not discovered at the first examination of the body. This wound, although slight, could not have been made by the woman using a razor to cut her own throat, it was pointed out by the police, unless the weapon slipped. In this event her sweater, or shirt waist, would first have to be severed because the wound in question is some inches below the collar line.

MAGRATH STILL SILENT.

Some of the officials reported that this cut was little deeper than a scratch. There appears to be controversy as to the character of the major wound on the woman's neck. The most conservative description is that this slash extends from the lobe of the right ear down to and penetrating the Adam's apple.

Others claim that there is a second slash on the left side of the throat extending from the left ear to the centre of the neck.

The Revere police scout the theory that a safety razor blade was used and are continuing the hunt for another razor. Three Winthrop and three Revere policemen combed the beach yesterday in an unsuccessful search for the razor and for the missing ulster.

RAZOR EXAMINED.

This would indicate that the so-called bloodstained razor, found in the kitchen of the accused man's home, was not such an important exhibit as was first supposed. The razor in question will be subjected to a microscopic test to determine whether the dark brown stains are human blood. A cursory examination of the blade showed that it contained dried lather and that it had not been washed after use.

Attorney Robert W. Nason has been retained as counsel for Pease.

EXPLAINS MONEY

The accused husband gave further information to the authorities concerning the $3412 found on his person when arrested in Boston Tuesday evening. He said he drew this money from a bank last week in order to protect it from attachment in the civil action brought by Attorney Leon J. Carro, counsel for Mrs. Catherine Brown, the Beachmont widow who is suing Pease for $1,000 for alleged breach of promise to marry.

The writ was filed August 21 and is returnable October 2. Reports that Mrs. Brown had withdrawn the suit were denied by her counsel who says that her declaration will be filed early in October.

Those who support the growing suicide theory today cited that Mrs. Pease had confessed to her step-daughter and others that she was disappointed in her marriage to Pease and that this and a mental condition due to her age may have induced her to end her life.

SHOCKED BY "OTHER WOMAN."

"I think I was too hasty," said Mrs. Pease in referring to her marriage in a conversation with her step-daughter, Miss Maude Gillespie, shortly before her death. In that chat, Mrs. Pease made it clear to her step-daughter that she should have proceeded with more caution before accepting Pease, who is resident mechanic for the Boston Coast Defence District.

WAS LOYAL TO PEASE.

The loyalty exhibited by Mrs. Pease, according to information received by the police, showed her to be a woman of exceptional character and ideals. She did not learn of the other woman and the unnamed child in the life of her new husband until after they were married by the Rev. Nelson S. Burbank of Revere, on July 21. Their courtship was so impulsive that Pease had the five-day clause waived in order to hasten the wedding, which occurred without the knowledge of Mrs. Pease's aged mother, to whom she was very much attached.

Mrs. Pease showed her fine character and loyalty by visiting Mrs. Brown while a patient at Lafayette Hospital, bringing flowers and dainties and even going to the extreme of paying Mrs. Brown's hospital bill which amounted to eight dollars a week, exclusive of surgical expenses.

MRS. BROWN LOVES HIM.

"I was very lonely after the death of my husband eight years ago," added Mrs. Brown. "When I met Mr. Pease his friendship proved a great solace. His first wife and I were chums. After her death in 1919, Mr. Pease called on me frequently and I began to feel a love for him which was very real.

The shadow of "the other woman" followed even the first wife of Pease. She was made unhappy by the charge that Pease was attracted by the same Mrs. Catherine Brown of Winthrop avenue, Beachmont, who is now suing him for breach of promise.

FIRST WIFE JEALOUS.

This first wife, who was Mary Ennis, in her great jealousy once ordered Mrs. Brown from her home at No. 43 Crescent road at the occasion of the latter's visit there.

Pease, however, is said to have paid attentions to Mrs. Brown, before the death of his first wife and immediately after they became very intimate with the tall, dark widow who declares that he promised to marry her.

Just before her death Pease had sold her a real estate mortgage for $3,550 which, with other cash, was found on him. On right is a photo of the first wife of the prisoner, Mary Frances Ennis, who died several years ago. Much of the wealth possessed by Pease is said to have been left to him by his second wife.

GREEKS IN U. S. OFFER SERVICES

New York, Sept. 21.—In a cablegram sent to Premier Lloyd George at London, members of the Panionian League, composed of Greek-Americans and Greeks originating from Western Asia Minor, offered to join any British expeditionary force which might be formed against the Turks.

A message was sent also to Premier King of Canada seeking permission to be included in any Canadian forces sent against the Turks.

The organization addressed a telegram to Senator Lodge urging that he use his position as Republican leader to avert further catastrophe in the Near East. Members of the league subscribed $10,000 toward a $200,000 fund for relief work among the Greeks.

PERRY'S FATHER MIXED IN HERRICK DEATH

Attention was focussed on the Perry family in May, 1921, when love letters written by Alonzo W. Perry, Boston's heaviest taxpayer and father of Win Perry, became public as result of probe into circumstances connected with the finding of the lifeless body of Mrs. Ida M. Herrick on Christmas Day.

These letters and a picture of Perry had been placed on a dresser, under a weight, in such manner as to attract the instant attention of any one entering her room.

GIRL PUTS BIG THUG TO ROUT

But he had all the appearances of a foreigner and he was so big. I never saw such a big brute in all my life. He was drunk.

"I dropped the newspaper and tried to get up. He made a dive towards me, grabbing me by the throat. I slapped him on the side of the face. He choked me. I fought him as much as I possibly could. He must have weighed fully 180 pounds, but at that I managed to keep him from choking me to death.

MAKES BRAVE BATTLE.

"He threw me to the floor and in the scramble my shirtwaist was badly torn. I got up off the floor and screamed. He still continued to punch me. He struck me on the right side of my face and cut me badly, but I kept fighting him. I think that he was amazed to see me putting up so much fight.

"Every time he threw me to the floor I would hastily get on my feet again and attack him. He grabbed me by my left thumb, which certainly did hurt, but I got away. We must have been battling for fifteen minutes, although it seemed hours.

"He certainly found that he did not have things as easy as he expected. When he inflicted a cut on my face, and the blood commenced to run, I was terribly frightened and hardly knew what to do, but as long as he did not have me helpless I was able to keep him at a safe distance.

TREATED AT HOSPITAL.

"I never used my hands to such good use in my life as I did during those exciting minutes in the house. When he grabbed me again, I hit him.

"My screams attracted the servants in the house and they rushed in, and by that time the big beast made his escape.

"When it was all over and my father and brother arrived at the house, I broke down. I was hysterical, my shirtwaist was badly torn, and my face cut and my thumb sprained. My father rushed me to the hospital where I had my bruises about the head and face treated, and my thumb attended to.

"I never want to go through such an experience, but I do think I took good care of myself against such big odds."

HELD IN $10,000 BAIL.

Miss Dillon is very popular in Fitchburg, and her heroism in battling Lundi is the talk of Fitchburg today. Judging by Lundi's appearance when he appeared at police headquarters, where he was taken shortly after his arrest about two hours after the time of the attack on the young woman, he had all the appearance of having been in a scrap. His face was scratched and his shirt was torn.

When arraigned before Judge Gallagher, he pleaded not guilty and was held in $10,000. He was unable to get bond and was taken to the House of Correction at Worcester.

BROKER PERRY'S WIFE STANDS BY CHAUFFEUR

for whom they ceased aside the heritage of the Perry mill ones?

Other late developments are disclosure that cultured Mrs. Perry registered at the Hotel Kendall, Framingham, as Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Damon; that she is backing her handsome young driver against her husband; that she disappeared, although planning to carry on the fight for divorce on the grounds of cruelty and abuse; that her chauffeur admirer is sticking by her and is now seeking her after defying the husband as a "beast unworthy of her."

Mrs. Perry, who spurned her wealthy husband, fled Perry's home with her chauffeur, after the latter had quit her husband's employ. It was she, not Damon, the chauffeur, who registered as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Damon.

This fact was revealed by "the other man" as he scored the husband, and declared his firm intention of finding the woman to help her in her divorce fight.

And while the handsome young driver searches for Mrs. Perry she is preparing to carry through to a finish the fight for divorce she opened Saturday a few hours before her flight.

Meantime her rich husband is quaking jealously the whereabouts of their two children, Winthrop, Jr., and Francis, stolen from the mother a few hours after her arrest at the New Kendall Hotel, Framingham, for violation of the true name law. He intends to file across libel in answer to her allegations of cruelty and abuse.

Winthrop W. Perry is the son of A. W. Perry, who for some years has been among the largest taxpayers in the city of Boston. A. W. Perry at times has had under his control more property than any other man in the city of Boston. He is credited with over $5,000,000.

In the interim the handsome chauffeur fell afoul of the Rockland police and was jailed in that town for the alleged larceny of Perry's automobile.

The arrests brought to light the existence of the "love triangle," and the highly interesting situation of the "other man" defying his employer-rival as one "unfit for such a woman."

THE KID GLOVE CHAUFFEUR.

Events in the Perry-Damon entanglements are chronologically: Employment of "the kid glove chauffeur" (so named by his townsmen for his penchant for gloves when in his employer's presence); development of friendship between the Adonis-like driver and his employer's wife on long country rides, unsatisfactory comparison by Mrs. Perry of Dash.ng Damon and her middle-aged husband, discharge of the chauffeur, divorce action, runaway and arrest.

When she left Rockland Mrs. Damon left a terse, biting note to her husband to the effect that she had gone, would not return and settlement could be made later.

This note, Perry says, coming a few minutes after divorce papers had been served on him unexpectedly and his discovery of the children and automobile missing was the final blow.

IN LAWYER'S HANDS.

Although she did not say on what grounds she has based her divorce suit, Mrs. Perry said that the matter is in the hands of her attorneys, and that it was on their advice that she left her home in Rockland last Saturday, taking with her her two small children, and relying on Damon to pilot her husband's expensive machine.

The papers in the suit were filed before she left Rockland on her auto tour. The news of the suit took Rockland residents "off their feet." For fifteen years the couple were believed to have been extremely happily married.

Carl Burrell, a cousin of Perry, said, "We had no intimation that there was anything wrong until served with the libel by Sheriff Condon and then went home to find every one gone and a note from his wife."

Said Chauffeur Damon: "Ah, she is truly a wonderful woman. Such a woman as you would not meet again in a hundred years. She is absolutely innocent of any wrong doing.

"I do not blame her for leaving Win Perry. In plain words, he is a brute. He should never have had a woman like his wife. I do not care if they send me to jail for a 100 years. I would not say one word against Mrs. Perry.

"This whole thing is a great big frame up on Win's part to shut my mouth. He is afraid of what I might say when the divorce trial comes. He originally hired me just so he could keep me handy.

ON VERGE OF BREAKDOWN.

"The real cause of Mrs. Perry leaving is that she couldn't stand her husband any longer. She is on verge of a nervous breakdown. She has been subject to fits of great loneliness when she would be liable to pack up at any minute and go most anywhere.

"She is devoted to her two boys. They are her life. She always took them on her trips. Once I drove her to the Cotter House, Jaffrey, N. H., for a week's vacation and another time for a week-end trip. I was ordered by Mr. Perry to take instructions from Mrs. Perry any time. Naturally, I never questioned anything she said.

"Saturday morning he was especially mean. I could not stand him any longer, so I gave him my notice and said, 'I am through tonight.' He just laughed and walked away.

"Well, that morning Mrs. Perry ordered me to pack for a trip. I strapped the trunks on the car and took her towards New York. She ordered me back to Framingham. What she signed on the register, well I don't know what it was. The fact that yesterday the charge against her was dismissed shows how little there was to it."

Before Mr. Perry had begun to think of being served with divorce papers he received a note mailed from Boston to his Boston office saying: "Fire your chauffeur and avoid a family scandal."

A few days later Sheriff Condon presented him with the papers. The ball games on his lawn after business hours ceased about that time, no phone noticed. Last Saturday young Damon was "fired." That noon he, Mrs. Perry and the latter's two sons left Rockland in the great limousine.

MADE NEW YORK TRIP.

According to police belief, they toured to New York city, arriving from a half hour after midnight Sunday morning. Monday afternoon found them returned to Framingham.

Before they made their departure from Rockland Mrs. Perry had gathered up some of the most cherished belongings—heavy, solid silver, table covers, expensive linens, rare china and bric-a-brac.

These the police found, they say, in Damon's house. More personal things were discovered in the two suitcases he had packed up ready to take away with him when he was arrested near the Rockland station as he returned from Framingham.

Although Mrs. Perry admitted she had registered as Damon's wife, she denied that she had occupied a room with him. They had secured a suite of two rooms, she said, and she and one of her sons slept in one of them while Damon and the other boy occupied the other.

Damon, meanwhile, is being held in bonds of $1,000 by the Abington police for a court appearance next Saturday, when he must answer to a charge of larceny of Mr. Perry's automobile, in which the trip was made. He was arrested in Rockland at Mr. Perry's request, shortly before Mrs. Perry was taken into custody at Framingham.

Mrs. Perry insists that the automobile in question, however, is hers and not her husband's. She also declares that Damon resigned from her husband's employ just before he left on the auto jaunt with her, and insists that she will do all she can to help him out of his present predicament.

HUSBAND INNOCENT, DECLARES WIFE OF MURDERED RECTOR

MRS. HALL SUSPECTS ROBBERY

Says He Left Home With a Lot of Money to Pay Mills' Doctor's Bill

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 21.—Expressing her belief that robbery was the motive for the murder of Rev. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills, the rector's widow today issued a statement in which she declared her confidence in the integrity of her husband and Mrs. Mills and her disbelief of suggestions that there was any improper intimacy between them.

Through a relative Mrs. Hall said: "I am confident that there was nothing wrong between my husband and Mrs. Mills. I feel that this tragedy was the result of a holdup.

"On Thursday evening my husband told me he was going to the Mills home with a lot of money, as he wanted to pay a doctor's bill contracted by Mrs. Mills as the result of an operation. He was going to pay this money to Dr. R. L. McKiernan of New Brunswick. The money was being paid by the church, to be repaid by Mr. Mills through weekly instalments from his salary.

HAD MONEY IN WALLET.

"Mr. Hall had this money in a wallet in his pocket when he left the house. When the bodies were found this wallet and a valuable gold watch my husband always carried were missing. I saw my husband's relations with Mrs. Mills while she was choir leader, and I know that there was nothing between them. Our marriage was an ideal one.

"On Thursday evening Mr. Hall went out at 7:30, saying he would be back in a little while. I waited until 2 o'clock the following morning for him, and when he did not return, I went to the church with my brother, Willie Stevens, to look for him.

"The church was locked and we returned home and went to bed. I tossed all night andcould not sleep At 7 o'clock in the morning I telephoned my cousin, Edwin Carpenter, and asked him to get in touch with the authorities and ask them to look for Mr. Hall.

TELEPHONED FOR SISTERS.

"I also telephoned to Mr. Hall's two sisters, Mrs. Paul Bonner of New York and Mrs. Frank Voorhees of Jersey City. They both came to New Brunswick immediately, arriving here Friday morning before the bodies were found.

"On Thursday evening my brother Willie and I were in the house all evening. Our automobile had not been used since Wednesday evening, and was not used until the day of Mr. Hall's funeral."

At the Mills home it was impossible to learn today whether Mr. Hall had called there Thursday evening.

THE FIRST PICTURE OF MRS HALL

SLAIN RECTOR'S WIFE.

This likeness of Mrs. Edward W. Hall shows her in the uniform of a Red Cross worker. It is the first photograph of her thus far published.

Old Farm May Have Been Hall Haunt

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 21.—Did the Rev. Edward W. Hall maintain the old Phillips farmhouse as a secret liaison haunt?

Did his wealthy wife purchase this property recently.

Did Hall have a key to the place?

Were he and his choir leader, Mrs. Mills, in the habit of meeting there?

Those questions popped to the surface yesterday in the double murder investigation. Their answers have not yet been found.

Alfred S. Marsh, attorney for Porter & Lavin in the transaction, said:

"I am certain Hall was never in the place."

Mills' daughter Charlotte refused to discuss the case. John Kelly, who lives in the basement of the house in which Mills resided, said members of his family were in front of the house all evening Thursday. bbut that they had not seen Mr. Hall.

BALK CAMPAIGN OF WINCHESTER FIREMEN

Winchester firemen charge a plot to balk their campaign for a two-platoon system in the order issued keeping them in the firehouse when not on duty at fires.

The firemen are anxious to have the double platoon system voted by the people of Winchester. They must obtain the names of 480 Winchester citizens to get the question on the ballot.

Inside of the fire stations the men will have no opportunity to secure the names. They will hire Winchester people to go about town soliciting signatures, they state.

N. Y. AGENTS GET BIG WHISKEY CACHE

New York, Sept. 21.—The biggest seizure of real whiskey in this vicinity since prohibition went into effect was made early today by customs inspectors, who confiscated 2,112 cases (25,344 bottles) of fine Scotch and rye whiskey on board the seagoing tug Jessica L. M. Kehoe of Brooklyn. The captain and crew of the tug were taken into custody.

Customs inspectors said they had ascertained that the tug had met an ocean liner about eight miles off shore, where the transfer of whiskey was made.

STOVE BURSTS, THREE NEAR DEATH IN FIRE

Chatham, Sept. 21.—Three persons fought death today when fire destroyed their home at Forest Beach, South Chatham.

Seeking to protect his wife and their maid, W. L. Whitney, retired Newton banker, battled the flames as they threatened to prevent the exit of the women from the building.

The man was severely burned before managing to assist Mrs. Whitney and the girl outside. The maid was also burned.

The building, a beautiful Summer cottage, was burned to the ground. The blaze was started by the explosion of an oil stove.

FIRST COAST AIR DELIVERY SERVICE

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—An indication that the airplane as a business proposition is emerging from the experimental stage was given today in the filing with the State Railroad Commission of the tariffs and schedules of the Pacific States Express for a proposed air service between San Francisco and Modesto, Cal. The service will start with one round trip daily and the freight charge will be 35 cents a pound or fraction thereof, with a minimum charge of $1. It is planned later to extend the air delivery to Stockton and Fresno. The company plans to carry emergency freight chiefly, specializing in automobile and machinery parts.

BRITISH MAY KICK AT SHIP SEARCHING

London, Sept. 21.—An international diplomatic issue may result from the refusal of the commander of the ex-going yacht Onward, flying the British flag, to allow the American "dry navy" to search his vessel at sea for whiskey, it was intimated today.

British newspapers are "playing up" the Onward incident at great length. The Admiralty has not yet received any report on it, but officials were inclined to believe that if the American prohibition officers were outside the three-mile limit the affair constituted "an unfriendly and illegal act."

CELLULOID COMBS CAUSE DEATH

Lawrence, Sept. 21.—Mrs. Grace Storer of the city, aged eighty-two, died this forenoon at the Lawrance General Hospital as a result of burns and shock suffered last night while she was visiting friends in Salem, N. H.

Mrs. Storer placed her celluloid combs on a stove, preparatory to combing her hair, and they flared up in her face.

WALL OF MONEY BLOCKS MURDER MYSTERY

By ARTHUR B. REEVE.
Creator of the Famous Craig Kennedy Detective Stories.
Copyright, 1922, by Universal Service and New York American.

New Brunswick, N. J., Sept. 21.—Facts—motives—clews. These are gospel of mystery. And the greatest of these is motive.

The scientific description of the conditions of the bodies of Rector Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Reinhardt Mills has at last been given in an interview by Dr. William H. Long, coroner's physician.

Dr. Long says the bullet wound in Mrs. Mills' head was through the forehead exactly between the eyes and above the nose as accurate as if it had been fired at a bull's-eye. There was only one wound. On the rector was found one wound just forward of the right ear, coursing downward and coming out the back of his neck.

WOMAN'S CLOTHING TORN.

But the rector's coat was torn far up the back. He had been in violent struggle with some one. Mrs. Mills' arm was torn or clawed about the entire length. There were many other similar wounds on her body, especially on her neck. In other words, this couple had been mauled, literally mauled.

The question that at once pops into any mind is this: Who tears a woman to pieces? Take this along with the reiterated statement of McCabe, the bridge tender at the Raritan Canal, that he heard screams of two women, finally a moan as if from one woman. Whoever else may have been present there were two women apparently.

Prosecutor Strickler admitted to me that so far there are only three material exhibits.

Exhibit A is the letters found scattered about the woman, the strange letters of a romantic woman.

Exhibit B consists of a gun. Whether it is THE gun or not Mr. Strickler would only: "You will have to draw on your imagination."

BULLET MARKS.

Exhibit C is a woman's handkerchief, of cheap make and texture, but marked with bullet holes.

Another new angle: Months ago Mrs. Mills is painted by one of those close to the Hall family as a trouble maker. She is represented as having tried to make the maids admit the Halls were always quarrelling. So much for new facts that point motive.

The old Phillips mansion, some hundred yards down a bend in the lane from where the bodies were found, came into prominence with the thorough inspection on a visit by County Detective George Totten of Somerset county, wherein it is situated.

It is a huge affair of some twenty rooms. The strangest thing about it is its spick and span, clean appearance for a house empty and untenanted for so long.

On the second floor are four large and one small bedroom in which are four beds, two with mattresses and two without. The two with mattresses show unmistakable evidence of having been used.

THE SOFA AND CHAIR.

It is downstairs that is most interesting. Here are five huge rooms. The interesting room downstairs is the library. There between two windows were found drawn up an old gold velvet covered sofa, and very close to it an oak, green upholstered Morris chair. One could not help wondering what ghosts of the past had occupied the couch with the chair drawn up so close to it.

At once arises a query as to whether a key to it might have been in the possession of one of the Hall household.

That introduces us to a number of queries that either the officials or the principals in the most baffling mystery of years cannot or will not answer.

Again, no one has answered the query as to why no alarm was given to the police of the missing rector until late Friday afternoon—and then only by the counsel for the family, former State Senator William E. Florence, the big political power of the county. It begins to savor too much like the aspect of the great Ward killing mystery.

Finally there is the big query propounded by one of the wives in New Brunswick today: "Why has the wealthy Stevens-Hall family, with the weight of fifteen or twenty millions back of it by marriage and other relationships, not offered a reward for the murderer?

"If the family could, or would it rather not know? Does it wish to hush the matter up? Who is paying for the expensive funeral of Mrs. Mills guaranteed to the undertaker, who flatly refuses to tell who guaranteed him? Are the Mills family to be considered in the light of prisoners—of someone?

Meanwhile, as the almost countless reporters from all over the country follow busily every clew, real or bad, they find themselves always landing up against a wall. It is not a wall of stone. It is a wall of money-millions.

Flapper Turns the Crank at Mile-Nucilage Station

She Meets Fair Driver, Who Never Learned How to Reverse Her Car

By THE FLAPPER
Caryl Frink

The fresh looking egg in the commandment six breezed up the drive-way like a winning batch and came to a stock still stop alongside of the gas pump.

"Fill'er up," he said, carelessly. Also loudly.

"Yessir," said I.

But even as I started the crank the youth sprung from the driver's seat and frolicked around to the rear of his car.

"One," I counted, as the handle sprung around backwards.

MYSTIC SIGNAL.

"P-s-s-st," signaled the hard-cooked egg, with frantic and secret gestures. He held up two fingers and winked one eye. Whereupon, being a trained gas-station hand, I twirled a second gallon and loudly said:

"Nine—ten. Anything else, sir?"

"Nope," handing me a bunch of crushed bills that turned out to be a dollar.

He counted his change over and walked on the gas.

"How's that for a fish-hook pocket?" I asked Johnny Le Mann, the reg'lar gas-man, who was drawing a quart of medium.

"Huh," snorted Johnny. "That jelly bean's one o' them two-gal sports."

"They come in here runnin' on their las' gill o' juice an' clamour loudly f'r a new gallon o' gas because the old is all gone. Me'n Hughie get many a laugh outa 'em."

FLABBY FOUR.

Hughie looked up from under a Flabby Four that he was denuding bolt by bolt.

"The one's I like are the cakies who float in on a friend's rubber an' pipe up:

"'Give me three gals o' gas —it ain't my car.'

"Speakin' o' weasles, Johnny took up, "there's the Silly Willie who tries to get a bit of free advice on the general health and good spirits of his fliverino. Like this here:

"'Well, fella, she sounds kinda clattery, don'teha think? Wonder what might be the matter with her. Well, there's always something wrong with 'em—if it isn't one thing it's another. D'ya s'pose it's the carbeurator this time?'

THE DOCTOR'S FRIEND.

"An' then we haffa make a guess at something. He's the same guy that invites the doctor to dinner and gets the whole family diagnosed. Look it, a customer."

This time it was a flap in a flivver who was honking brashly for gas.

"All right, young woman," I said. "Jus' back up to yon pump. This one has gone dry."

"Pardon me a minute," she replied, and without warning stepped on it and was a block down the street.

"Now wha'dja do?" asked Hughie. "She looked mad."

"I don't know what's a matter of her," I said.

"She jus'—oh, there she is!"

Sure enough Nutty Nancy tears up the drive and stops at the correct pump.

"I hope you weren't worried about me," she simpered. "I jaddda go around the block. It seems it is silly if one," she added as the gas gurgled in the tank, "but I haven't the faintest idea how a car is guaked!"

COUNCIL PLANS TO PROTECT SULTAN

Constantinople, Sept. 21 (By the Associated Press).—At a meeting of the crown council, presided over by Sultan, the position of the caliph was discussed in the event the Nationalists forcibly take Constantinople.

The heir apparent and other principal personages were present and measures for the protection of the Sultan were decided upon.

It is learned that there is no truth in the reports that the Angora government had decreed the abdication of the Sultan.

SAYS UNIFORM LED GIRL TO HER DEATH

Mineola, N. Y., Sept. 21 (By International News Service).—"We will show by the most conclusive evidence that Miss Edith Lavoy did not shoot herself and that the revolver in question belonged to William T. Creasy and had been brought by him all the way from Bellevue, Ky.," declared District Attorney E. N. Edwards today in opening the State's case at the trial of Creasy, charged with Miss Lavoy's murder.

The twelfth juror had just been secured before the prosecutor began his opening address.

"We will show you that he was the only person that would have shot this girl and the one person who had a motive to shoot her," said Edwards. "We will show you that he met her by joining a correspondence and matrimonial club, to which men paid $6, sent pictures of themselves and pretended to be good prospects for lonely girls, and that Miss Lavoy was one of the foolish little girls that answered Creasy's advertisement or statement.

"We will show that Miss Lavoy was a country girl and was carried away by Creasy's sailor uniform and his own recommendation of himself. Miss Lavoy was a pretty, well developed American girl, twenty years of age and just out of college when this man with his sailor uniform and representation that he was a steel car builder attracted her foolish, romancing self."

"She gave her heart to Creasy," he said, "in full faith that the ring put upon her finger represented the most sacred trust to her.

"When Creasy did this, he was a deep-dyed hypocrite. He knew his presentations to her through the matrimonial club were false. He said he had never been married then. The truth was that he was then married.

"We will show," he continued in his statement to the jury, "that Creasy protested he loved her while she lay dead in the couch, her body still warm, yet ten minutes later he cast a coarse reflection against her character. Fortunately, his lies and reflections were unfounded."

EXPERTS AID IN MURDER TRIAL OF DR. BRYSON

By LUTHER A. HUSTON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Courthouse, Huntingdon, Pa., Sept. 21.—Psychiatrists and neurologists were marshalled in formidable array by the defense here today in an efforts to prove that Dr. Herbert J. Bryson, on trial for the murder of Mrs. Helen Irene Haines, was mentally irresponsible at the time the tragedy occurred.

The picture painted with a cumbersome brush of technical and legal verbiage was that of a man mentally alert, physically vigorous, who came back from the World War a broken hulk from whom even his closest friends turned away in pity.

SOUGHT SOLACE IN HILLS.

Fleeing from the scene of his former activities to Cassville, a peaceful, restful hamlet far back in Huntingdon County's hills, Dr. Bryson solaced his clandestine romance with Mrs. Haines, the wife of a Washington chauffeur, sought mental and physical rehabilitation. Discord entered his illicit "love nest," however, the defense contends.

Interest in the defense of shell-shock, set up for the first time as a plea extenuation for capital crime, was divided with the promise of a mystery strongly held by persons thoroughly familiar with pleas of the defense.

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN ACTRESS.

Although the nature of the mystery was closely concealed, it was said to centre around the presence in court of the unexplained "woman in black" about whom a swirl of conjectures has edified since she arrived in town. It was learned authoritatively today that this woman is an actress.

Mrs. Haines was also on the stage prior to her acquaintance with Dr. Bryson.

Groundwork of the defense plea of insanity was laid when half a dozen friends and former associates of Dr. Bryson testified to the marked change in his physical appearance and mental capabilities after his return from the war.

BRITISH WILL RECALL ARMY AT CHANAK

Paris, Sept. 21 (By the Associated Press).—There is no question of the immediate withdrawal of the British troops from Chanak on the Asiatic side of the straits of the Dardanelles, it was authoritatively stated in British official circles here today.

Latest reports received in British quarters indicate that the British are not in danger of attack in their present position, and there were indications that the soldiers might remain in Chanak pending the peace conference.

Mustapha Kemal Pasha is now faced with two distinct parties in his government, the one warlike and demanding the immediate occupation of Thrace, and the other pacific and willing to remain in the present Turkish Nationalist positions in Asia Minor until the conference settles the peace terms.

The British quarters to which this information comes believe that Kemal is supporting the pacific members of the government and will be able to hold the army in check.

Premier Poincaire's assurances, it is understood, have come from the party in the Angora government, which led the Premier to undertake to obtain a guarantee that the Turks would not cross the Straits until the peace conference was ended, provided the British troops were withdrawn from the other side.

No meetings were arranged for today among the allied representatives, but informal conversations were in prospect if definite advices on pending points were received from London.

French Take Greek Troops Prisoners

Athens, Sept. 21 (By the Associated Press).—According to information received in official circles, French naval units occupied Mudania, on the Sea of Marmora, and insisted upon the surrender of several regiments of Greek troops who were trying to gain the sea for embarkation homeward after their defeat by the Turks.

The report has caused excitement in Greek circles. Mudania is within the neutral zone of the Dardanelles.

Formal Warning to the Turks

Constantinople, Sept. 21 (By International News Service).—Formal warning to the Turkish Nationalists not to violate the neutrality of the allied zones along the Straits was issued today by General Sir Charles Harrington, commander of the British forces.

Although in the form of a communique, the warning was couched in the strong language of an ultimatum. Sir Charles said that "any violation will react upon the authors."

WRECKS SALOON ON COURT ORDER

Hammond, Ind., Sept. 21.—Andrew Rapina, soft drink saloon man, today was free, but his establishment is a mass of wreckage. Before Judge Joseph Sullivan for the third time in three months for alleged violation of liquor laws, Rapina was given choice of six months in jail or having his saloon wrecked. He chose the latter and city firemen did the job.

"Thoughtful Mothers!" Are You One of Them?

All mothers—bless them—are loving and devoted. How often we are led to respect and admire the "thoughtful mother" who provides for emergencies and saves her loved ones from hours of suffering and herself from needless anxiety and sleepless vigil.

The season for colds, coughs, pneumonia, influenza and catarrhal ailments is drawing near, when the "thoughtful mother" makes up a full pint of pure, quickly effective cold and cough syrup, made at home by using pure concentrated Essence Mentho-Laxene (2½ ozs.) mixed with simple sugar syrup or strained honey. A pint of sugar and a half pint of water makes the syrup in three minutes. The essence and and the syrup are then poured into a pint bottle and is ready to use to prevent bad colds and coughs getting worse. The very first dose gives wonderful relief and in a few days all trace of the congestion and catarrhal symptoms are usually gone. The joy of seeing the child free from from colds, coughs and dangerous complications, the freedom from anxiety and sleepless nights, to say nothing of the real economy of this home remedy—is worth its weight in gold.

The drug store supplies the Essence Mentho-Laxene. Best ever sold for cough or cold.

PAINS ACROSS SMALL OF BACK

Husband Helped in Housework. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Her Strong

Foster, Oregon.—"I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for pains across the small of my back. They bothered me so badly that I could do my work only with the help of my husband. One day he saw the 'ad.' in our paper telling what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is doing for women, so I began to take it. It has helped me wonderfully. GASOLINE TRAINS IOWA INNOVATION

Chicago, Sept. 21.—So successful have been the experiments with four gasoline motor-driven trains for suburban service that the Chicago Great Western Railroad is preparing to expand this branch of its equipment to fifteen such trains, to be used mainly in the more thickly-settled sections of Iowa, President Felton announced today. The trains consist of a specially constructed motor car, equipped with a high power gasoline engine and a trailer which resembles an ordinary interurban electric coach, although more heavily built.

PROTESTS WAR IN NAME OF WORKERS

London, Sept. 21.—A labor delegation, representing 4,000,000 British trade unionists, called on Premier Lloyd George today and asked the government not to engage in hostilities. It was headed by J. H. Thomas, representing the rail workers, and Miss Margaret Bondfield, representing the women workers.

Thomas urged withdrawal of British troops from Chanak, on the Dardanelles, saying that the "British government has not the right to make war which is a matter of concern to all the peoples of Europe."

Thomas declared that world unity is necessary in the present critical times.

Miss Bondfield told the Premier that the women of Great Britain will not countenance another war.

Communications of protest against war are deluging Downing street from church and feminist organizations.

Taunton, Sept. 21.—With his right arm almost severed, Mathew Flanigan, forty years old, of North Easton, was found beside the tracks of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, between Taunton and Brockton. BRITISH MONEY KING ON DEBT BOARD

Washington, Sept. 21.—The British Funding Commission to the United States, of which Austen Chamberlain has been named as head, is expected in this country late in October. The commission is coming to arrange for international loans and finances. Mr. Chamberlain, regarded as the leading financial expert of all Great Britain, was Chancellor of the Exchequer from 1903 to 1906, and again from 1919 to 1921. In the latter period he had the terrific problem of post-war financing. He is government leader in the House of Commons.

New Bedford, Sept. 21.—Five members of the city's police liquor and vice squad, including Sergeant Ellsworth Jacobs, its chief, are threatened with court action by a victim of one of their raids. B. & A. SHOPMEN ALL GET JOBS BACK

Announcement from the headquarters of the Boston & Albany Railroad asserts that the shopmen's strike has been settled and that all old employes will be given their jobs back inside of the next thirty days. Men returning to work will have their seniority rights below those of the men now at work. Although it is expected that the number of shopmen employed will soon be far above the average, it is pointed out that reviving business conditions, with increased demand on railway transportation facilities, will enable the road to utilize the services of every man that can be obtained.

Society Globe Trotter Back With Rare Art Treasures, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

AMOS A. LAWRENCE, who is a good deal of a globe trotter, has returned from a two-years' tour of the world, and is ensconced for the remainder of the season at his country home in Beverly on Beaver Pond.

Mr. Lawrence, a member of the Harvard '96 class, is well-known as a connoisseur of objects d'art, and I hear that he has brought home many treasures from the East to add to the already marvellous collection of rare bits picked up during past travels. Mr. Lawrence's Winter residence is in town at No. 85 Chestnut street.

SPEAKING of traveling, Mrs. Wolcott Howe Johnson and her popular daughter, Rosamond Johnson, are expected to arrive home around the first of November, after extensive travels in Honolulu, China, and Japan.

Both Mrs. Johnson, who was formerly Miss Fanny Betts of New York, and her daughter are among the most widely-traveled folk among the smart set here. Neither their town houses on Commonwealth avenue, nor their North Shore place at Hamilton sees very much of them. This Summer the younger son of the house, George F. B. Johnson, and his bride, have occupied the Hamilton estate, and for a portion of the season they had as their guests young Mrs. Johnson's mother and sister, Mrs. Lena Snellings and Miss Lanie Lew Snellings of Jacksonville, Fla.

THE J. A. Lowell Blakes (Anne Lindsay) have as guests at their Summer home in Beverly Farms Mr. and Mrs. Francis Stanton Blake Eugenie M. S. White), who have come there from Pau, France.

Which reminds me that the George Baty Blakes (Margaret Hunnewell) plan to spend the Winter in Santa Barbara, where they have taken a villa. They will come on from their country home in Lenox, nown as "Pine Needles," to spend October in Wellesley with Mrs. Blake's mother and sisters, Mrs. Arthur Hunnewell and the Misses Jane and Julia Hunnewell.

Mr. and Mrs. Blake have a Winter home in Brookline on Colchester street, but they do not spend a great deal of their time there.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM AMORY PARKER (Elsie Ames), who have been spending the Summer at Pride's Crossing, have gone for a visit to Bedford. Mrs. Parker is a daughter of the Oliver Ameses.

MISS LOUISA WELD
Miss Louisa Weld, daughter of the A. Winsor Welds, is a prominent member of her set. (Photo by White.)

AS young as he is, Paul A. Shaw, son of the Robert Gould Shaw, 2d, is a keen horseman, and I note that he has entered some of his mounts in the horse show being held today and tomorrow at the Newport County. Others who are exhibiting their horses at the show include "Reggie" Vanderbilt, Moses Taylor, Mrs. Marion Eppley, Commodore Arthur Curtiss James, Paul Fitz-Simmons and William H. Vanderbilt. The last named will show his newly acquired "Oakland Farm."

MRS. HOWARD CUSHING (Ethel Cochrane), who has a number of connections in Boston, will remain at "The Ledges," her Newport estate, until October 1, when she will return to New York.

QUITE a few members of the North Shore colony are deserting the Shore this time of the year for a brief visit to the White Mountains.

Among this group is Mrs. Edward Sohier Welch, who, with her three children and Mrs. Henry Grew and the latter's daughter, recently motored up to Bretton Woods, N. H., for a glimpse of the turning foliage. They were expected to return to their homes in West Manchester early this week.

MISS LOUISA WELD, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Winsor Weld of Chestnut Hill, spent the Summer with her family on Buzzards Bay, at Cataumet. Miss Weld, one of the younger set's most popular members, is a member of the Vincent Club and the Sewing Circle of 1919-20.

Mrs. Guy Norman has visiting her at her Beverly Cove place Mrs. George Howard of Washington.

THINK FIREBUG IS AT WORK IN LEXINGTON

Fire almost completely destroyed the Summer home of Joseph Stametsky on Taft avenue, East Lexington. The damage was $2,000. It is believed that the fire started from a pile of boards in the cellar and that it gradually worked its way upward until it had swept through the kitchen and up to the attic.

The police are convinced that the fire is the work of a firebug. Last Friday a blaze was discovered in the same spot where it supposedly started today.

Several months ago the barn in the rear of the house burned down.

TO TEST EINSTEIN THEORY IN ECLIPSE

New York, Sept. 21.—The Einstein theory of relativity will be on trial today. The test will be made by expeditions which have gone to Australia to make observations during a five-minute eclipse of the sun. American, English, German and Dutch scientists are included in the several parties. The tract of the total eclipse is along the Indian Ocean and through the heart of Australia. Others are on Christmas Island, west of Australia, and one has penetrated into the heart of Australia.

NEWPORT ESTATE OF STILLMAN SOLD

Newport, R. I., Sept. 21.—"Oak Lawn," the Narragansett avenue estate of James A. Stillman of New York, which has remained untenanted since the multi-millionaire banker became involved in the New York divorce courts, has been sold to William Fahnestock, who will occupy the place shortly. The estate contains about six acres of land, with a large frame dwelling, stables, garage and gardener's cottage. It is famous for the beautiful oak trees with which it is bordered.

For Street Wear

The well-appointed woman chooses the jewelry she wears upon the street as carefully as she does her frock or suit.

For morning wear with tailored suit you will notice a handsome pin at her throat, a wrist watch, a smart handbag, perhaps an unusual veil-pin. Her glove hides only her engagement and wedding ring and possibly a little finger ring to which she is particularly devoted. Later in the day, when bound for a luncheon, a matinee, or a tea, she wears jewelry a little more elaborate. Her earrings are of a style and stone to harmonize both with her gown and her smiling eyes. One of the flexible bracelets is worn over her glove. The necklace or pendant matches her earrings.

For morning, afternoon, evening, shopping, calling, going to the theatre, walking or using her car, the time and the occasion call for the right kind and combination of jewelry, just as they do for the right type of clothes.

We have been jewelers for a hundred and twenty-two years. We know the mode of the moment and believe that we can forecast what kinds of jewelry will remain in vogue for some time to come.

OCTOBER 9, FIRE PREVENTION DAY

Washington, Sept. 21.—President Harding today issued a proclamation calling upon all citizens to observe Monday, October 9, the anniversary of the great Chicago fire of 1871, as fire prevention day.

"It has long been a reproach to our country," the President declared, "that by reason of poor construction, inadequate facilities for fire prevention and all too general carelessness about possible causes of conflagration our fire waste reaches figures year after year which are not approached in any other country in the world.

"Mindful of the fire waste which is expressed in figures so huge as to be appalling, it may be emphasized that in a time when all communities need to conserve resources in hand and to promote prevention in every possible way there ought to be especial effort to minimize such losses.

"To this end, therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, appeal to the public authorities of the country, by such measures as to them may seem most effective and to citizens generally, to take steps for the observance of Monday, October 9, as fire prevention day.

"I suggest the special desirability of impressing upon the teachers and pupils in the schools and all workers in industrial establishments, the importance of precautionary measures for avoidance of fires."

Accompanying the proclamation, the White House made public a letter from President Harding to Thomas R. Murphy, chief of the San Francisco Fire Department, in which the President said that the fire losses in the United States in four years amounted to a sum sufficient to pay one-half the interest on the national debt.

KIN PROTEST BILL FOR SISTER'S "WAKE"

New York, Sept. 21.—The brothers Patrick and Michael Davey are of the firm opinion that the expenditures for a "wake" should be in keeping with the station of life of the decedent.

Consequently, the brothers filed with Surrogate Foley their list of objections to the accounting that Mrs. Rosie McGettrick gave of her dead sister's, Maggy Davey's estate. The petitioners live in Ballymote, County Sligo, Ireland.

The first thing they said they objected to was Mrs. McGettrick's charging against the $5,000, the sum of $1,000 alleged due her for the board of the deceased for 100 weeks prior to her death.

Then there is the funeral bill of $845, which included charges for expensive clothing worn by Maggy in her casket, and above all, that bill for $500, which Mrs. McGettrick says she expended for "cigars, cigarettes, tobacco and pipes," during the three nights of the "wake."

TO OBSERVE 200TH BIRTHDAY OF ADAMS

A proclamation calling upon the citizens of the State to unite in public observance of the 200th birthday anniversary of Samuel Adams, regarded by many as the most progressive statesman of the Revolutionary period, was issued by Governor Cox. The birthday anniversary will be September 27.

Inn Owner Dead

GEORGE A. DODGE.

George A. Dodge, proprietor of Pemberton Inn, the Eastern Talking Machine Co., and formerly connected with Paragon Park, the Georgian hotel and other enterprises, died at Whitefield Hospital, Whitefield, N. H., after an illness of one month.

Mr. Dodge, who resides in Brookline, was noted as the man who "made" Nantasket Beach. He was prominent in the Masonic fraternity and had a wide circle of personal and business friends. He was fifty-six years old.

SOCKLESS DANCE NOT FOR CLERICS

Portland, Ore., Sept. 21.—When "A Sinner Beloved," a pageant presented under the auspices of the drama commission of the Protestant Episcopal Church, was repeated at the Auditorium to a packed house, the leading dancer in a band of votaries of the god Baal-Ashtoreth was not in the cast.

Protest had been made by clergymen attending the convention that the dancer, who led a band of bare-legged maidens in a dance which was one of the features of the first production of the pageant, was immodest, and the dancer was ordered out of the performance by Dr. W. E. Gardner, head of the educational department of the church, under which the drama commission operates.

It was announced later that "she" was a boy.

AT 61 DIVORCES HUSBAND, TO CARE FOR RIVAL

Chicago, Sept. 21. — Mrs. Marie Reinert, sixty-one years old, subordinated love for her husband of more than thirty-eight years to sympathy for "the other woman" and an unborn child when she obtained a divorce and $10,000 cash alimony from Matthias Reinert, sixty-five, realtor.

During the hearing it was disclosed that Miss Marie Bourgous, the "other woman" and Reinert's niece, is living with a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Reinert. Mrs. Reinert expressed her willingness to care for Miss Bourgous and the baby expected in a few weeks.

According to the testimony at the hearing Reinert went to Europe in September, 1921, and returned last April. Shortly after, Miss Bourgous arrived from Alsace-Lorraine and asserted that she was soon to be the mother of a child of which her uncle was the father.

PINNED BY CRANE, WORKMAN KILLED

John T. Walsh, thirty-two years old, and single, of No. 132 Day street, Roxbury, was killed when struck by a lifting crane containing a large iron plate which pinned him to the wall at the Dover street yards of the New Haven railroad, where he was employed.

DAUGHTER FIGHTS WILL OF GOODWIN

Dover, N. H., Sept. 21.—When Edmund C. Goodwin of Rollinsford died in 1920, aged 88, he left all his worldly goods to his wife aged 36. She was married to him in 1917, after threats of a breach of promise suit. She is the daughter of a formerly interned German. Now the daughter of Goodwin, by a former marriage, is contesting the will of her father on the grounds of unsound mind and undue influence. The whole estate amounted to $13,600, which Goodwin said he ought to leave to his young wife because she took such good care of him during his life with her.

PROFESSOR CHARGES RIVAL ADMITTED BEING FATHER OF CHILD

TIERNAN TELLS HOW FRIEND MADE LOVE TO WIFE

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 21.—Harry Poulin, the debonair young haberdasher, admitted fatherhood of Mrs. Augusta Tiernan's youngest child and offered to make the financial settlement that is sought in the present sensational paternity suit, was the startling testimony of John P. Tiernan, the Notre Dame professor, on the witness stand here.

Every fibre of his body apparently atremble, the unnerved pedagogue fairly moaned his story of his personal arraignment of Poulin on the main street of South Bend the afternoon following Mrs. Tiernan's confession to him that the dapper young clothier was the father of her son.

FINALLY LOCATED.

"After calling at his house and inquiring for him over the telephone several times, I finally located him by telephone at his office," recounted the professor, his voice choking with emotion, as he proceeded. "I told him to meet me at 3 o'clock at the post office corner that afternoon. That was last January 3.

"I said, 'Gus, has told me everything, Harry,' and he said, 'Yes, it's all true, but let's be friends John,' and I said, 'No, we'll always be bitter enemies.'"

The professor stopped abruptly. The words were stifled in his throat. He paused for a moment, and then stammered on:

"He asked me 'how much will you be willing to settle for?' and I said 'about $200, but Mrs. Tiernan will have to decide for she knows what the bills amounted to.'"

"And what did Mr. Poulin say then?" asked Prosecutor Jellison.

"He said, 'give me twenty-four hours to think it over.' I agreed and he said he would meet me at the same place the next day at the same hour."

"Did you tell him he would have to acknowledge his parentage of the child?" asked Mr. Jellison.

WANTED NO EXCUSES.

"Yes. I told him because of the situation and my position, he would have to recognize the child."

"And did he say anything to that?"

"He only said that he would meet me the next day. I told him that no excuses would go with me—oh, I don't remember all of the conversation—that was the most exciting day of my life—I can't say accurately just everything that happened, but I warned him no excuses would go."

"And did he meet you the next day," interpolated counsel.

"He did not."

VICTORY CLAIMED.

Judge Dinnenh refused to allow Professor Tiernan to testify as to his conjugal relations with his wife during February and March of last year.

Attorneys for Poulin regarded this ruling as a distinct victory.

There was a striking contrast in the poise and manner of these two rivals as they faced each other in court today.

The Professor presented an abject figure as he nervously moved about in the witness chair. His face was white and gaunt and furrowed with lines of care. He appeared dazed.

In marked contrast, Poulin, dressed immaculately, lolled indifferently in his chair, as if he of all in the crowded court room were the least concerned in this weird situation. He smiled and even laughed at times.

CONDUCTOR OF REVELS.

All of the social gaieties indulged in by the Tiernans and the Poulins when mutual friendship existed were arranged by Poulin and Mrs. Tiernan, according to the professor. Poulin was the personal conductor of all of the revels, he said.

"For example, we had a picnic in August last year," he narrated. "Poulin acted as cook. My wife, as his assistant, was with him constantly. Poulin went around the group of ladies once, kissing them all, including Mrs. Tiernan. They went bathing that day before I arrived. My wife wore a bathing suit that Poulin gave her. I had given her the money with which to purchase one, but she had spent it in other ways."

The ratio of one dance for himself to every four granted Poulin was the best arrangement that the professor was ever able to make at the numerous program dances they attended together, he said.

Poulin was always paying court to his wife, Tiernan charged, riding with her in the back seat of the automobile when they traveled to and from their destinations, while he himself occupied either the front seat or a seat in another car. He continued:

"When the Poulins were guests at our house for dinner, Mrs. Tiernan appeared to take delight in preparing his favorite dishes. While she was serving him once he stroked her arm with a caress and said 'that's the stuff.'

"And weren't your suspicions ever aroused?"

"No, sir, not once," almost moaned the witness, his head nodding slowly.

TOLD OF NEW BABY.

Tiernan described his astonishment at Poulin's attitude when he told him that there was a new baby in his home.

"It was the day after the youngster was born," said the professor. "I saw Poulin crossing the street. I hailed him and he stopped.

"We have a new baby at our house," I told him. He said excitedly, 'Is it a boy or girl.' I said a boy. He hung his head and walked away. Never said a word."

"Never congratulated you at all?" queried counsel.

"No, not a—— not a word," faltered the witness.

Mrs. Tiernan, looking rather wistfully at her husband, was sobbing softly, her fingers pinching her cheek. Poulin sat apathetically thumping his fingers on the counsel table.

Brewery Raids Net 536,424 Bottles of Beer and Ale

Windsor, Ont., Sept. 21.—More than half a million bottles of beer, ale and porter are held by provincial authorities following a series of raids on brewery company warehouses in and near this city.

The raids were made under orders of W. E. Raney, attorney-general of Ontario, who charges the brewing companies with failing to make proper returns of the liquor sent out of the country.

By actual count 536,424 bottles of beer, ale and porter were confiscated.

UNKISSED BRIDE WINS QUICK DIVORCE

Chicago, Sept. 21.—"If the continuity of the human race depends on my husband Walter this would be a deserted world. Why he never even kissed me."

With this simple, yet unique plea Mrs. Julia Brightmore, an attractive young wife, almost instantly won a divorce decree in Divorce Court before Judge Mangan.

"He never kissed me before marriage but on our honeymoon I simply expected to have affection lavished on me. I expected lots of love and kisses after we were married but something was wrong and he didn't get either. As a husband he was a sad, sad mistake."

San Francisco, Sept. 21.—Failure on the part of her banker husband to respond to her affectionate advances, coupled with the continued air of indifference created irreparable damage to the matrimonial happiness of Mrs. Dorothy Dozier Kaufman, according to her statements in court when she was granted a divorce from Ernest O. Kaufman, wealthy banker of the Orient.

MOVIE NEWS and NOTES

By FREDERICK JOHNS.

SCORES of young screen actresses in Los Angeles, wavering between bobbing their hair or waiting for the style to change, quickly made up their minds to bob it, when Maurice Tourneur, filling the cast for Lorna Doone, his latest historical spectacle just completed at the Thomas H. Ince Studios, announced that he needed peasant girls with "Dutch cuts" for seventeenth century atmosphere. As a result bobbed hair is still the rule among the aspiring young movie maids in Culver City and Hollywood.

SYLVIA "MOTHER" ASHTON started into the movies via the stove! Literally.

Twelve years ago she started in as cook at the old Biograph Studio in the time when D. W. Griffith was directing Mae Marsh, the Gish Girls, "Mary," Owen Moore and a lot more that are now famous.

She has since become one of the leading character actresses of the screen and now intends to do more for her friends by placing on the market a book of her famous recipes. This will be welcomed by the mothers of some of the coming girls who will sport curls and become famous.

She has appeared in practically every Lasky production for the last few years and is now working with Agnes Ayres under the able direction of the veteran, Paul Powell.

65-MILE AN HOUR BOAT.

BETWEEN pictures, Dustin Farnum, Bill to his brother, William, spends most of his time on the water. His famous powerboat, Miss Los Angeles II., credited with being the fastest oceangoing speed craft in the world, has done sixty-four miles an hour in rough water. On July 4, while in a regatta off San Pedro, racing in a heavy sea, the craft shipped water and would have sunk with all on board, had not a steam yacht passed a line and towed the boat to safety.

MONK EASTMAN IN FILM.

ONE of the most inspiring stories that has come out of the war is that of "Monk Eastman," a New York gangster, notorious throughout the country, whose tale has been immortalized on the screen in Thomas H. Ince's "Skin Deep."

The "Monk" after a life of crime and a term in the penitentiary, suddenly dropped out of sight. The next heard of him was when Private William Delaney returned from France with the 106th Infantry, bringing a Victory Medal and an "excellent" service record. The "Monk" had enlisted under his real name and tried to atone under shell fire.

Governor Smith restored his citizenship and the "Monk" tried to go straight. Gangster enemies, finding he could no longer be used, shot him in cold blood on Christmas night two years ago.

His story suggested the thrilling melodrama, "Skin Deep," which makes such a tremendous appeal for appreciation on the part of the nation of the services of American fighting men.

MARY TUDOR REMEMBERED

IN 1912 there were presented in Norfolk, England, a pageant, portraying the coming of the the squires and gentry of the county to pay respects to their Princess, Mary Tudor. In the principal part of the pageant each and every character was represented by a person of the same family name and living in the same place as the original in the real reception over 400 years ago. Princess Mary's romantic marriage to Charles Brandon, afterwards Duke of Suffolk, is still the favorite legend in England, and Cosmopolitan's picturization of the story in "When Knighthood Was in Flower," with Marion Davies as the star, is eagerly awaited by English cinema fans.

NATALIE TO RETURN

NATALIE TALMADGE may soon be going back to the screen. She is to leave shortly for New York, accompanied by Buster Keaton, Jr., and his renowned comedian father, and during that time Natalie may sign up for a screen appearance. Incidentally the Keatons will meet Norma and Constance and Joseph M. Schenck, who are returning from Europe on October 22. Meanwhile Buster and his manager, Lou Anger, will have negotiated a new contract for another series of comedies. His present series of twelve for First National release will have been completed, and it is most likely that the same organization will again distribute the Keaton laugh films.

VALENTINO WITH WILLIAMS.

ONE of the sharpest clashes of types on the screen is contained in the Vitagraph feature, "A Rogue's Romance," starring Earle Williams and Rudolph Valentino. Earle Williams, one of the handsomest men on the screen, is in this picture Monsieur Picard, the dupe of the Paris Prefect of Police, polished, debonair man of the world, and master criminal. Of a different strain of the underworld is The Ferret, acknowledged chief of the Paris Apaches, loved of all women with whom he comes in contact. The Ferret is portrayed by Rudolph Valentino, virile, masterful, with the fierce beauty of the panther. Circumstances make them deadly enemies, and their battle to the end is one of two types and two distinct sets of methods.

AMERICAN IS PRAISED FOR STRIKE NEWS

Lebanon, N. H., Sept. 21.—Union laborers were urged to use their votes to elect to public office men who will give the laboring men of the country a square deal and a sympathetic hearing, in a speech delivered at the convention of the New Hampshire Federation of Labor by Frank McCarthy of Boston, general organizer for the American Federation of Labor.

Following McCarthy's address, the convention went on record as endorsing the new Workers' Educational Bureau, which is designed to give out information concerning conditions and trade union history to workers all over the country. Another resolution, urging union men to prevent open shops by buying only union labelled goods, was also passed.

Business sessions are in order today, while in the evening James Starr of Manchester, vice president of the United Textile Workers, will speak at a mass meeting.

President Barry praised the stand taken in New Hampshire's labor difficulties by the Boston American, declaring that the American had given the Manchester textile strikers fairer treatment than any other Boston newspaper.

In the afternoon yesterday delegates to the convention were guests of a downtown moving picture proprietor, who showed a new film made from ex-President Wilson's book, "Freedom."

IMMIGRANT BOY IS PRIZE B. U. STUDENT

Jacob Bagdonian of Lawrence enrolled at the Boston University College of Liberal Arts as the winner of the third national prize of $100 offered by the Near East Relief Society. He also won the first Massachusetts prize on the subject, "What the Near East Has Done for Armenia." Born in Alintab, Armenia, he was brought to this country by his mother when he was but three years old, going to Derry, N. H. While in that town he was awarded a gold medal for an essay, "The History of the American Flag and What It Means to Me." Bagdonian plans to go to Harvard Law School upon the completion of his course from Boston University.

REFUSED DIVORCE FROM 'WATER NYMPH'

Rochester, N. Y., Sept. 21.—Rumors that a wife disported herself as a water nymph are not sufficient grounds for a divorce. Neither are letters characterized as "very uncomplimentary," said Justice A. J. Rodenbeck to Claude F. Sager, who is suing Sarah E. Sager for a divorce.

Razor In Ring

TONY INNELLO

BARBER, WITH BUT ONE LEG, CHALLENGES

The Boston American's unofficial handicap for barbers proceeds apace, with new contestants appearing daily to combat the claims of the original entrants.

The latest to throw his razor into the ring is Tony Innello, a brother of John Innello, one of the first to enter the tourney. Tony lives at No. 8 Milton street, East Dedham, and claims a right to extraordinary notice because he is the only one-legged barber in Greater Boston.

He stoutly avers, however, that the absence of one limb does not in any way render him handicapped in the matter of shaving, haircutting and the like. He even hints that with one arm he could show up the others.

He refuses to state his time for a shave and a haircut.

"Let the rest of them say what their records are," said Tony. "I keep mum until the contest. Then I let my razor speak for me."

POLICE HUNT DOG WHICH ATTACKED BOY

The Dorchester police are still looking for the dog which bit seven-year-old Frank Robinson of No. 39 Ashmont street, Dorchester, in the eye and cheek several days ago. The dog, which is owned by Samuel Waldman, also of Ashmont street, scared several children, and then bit the Robinson boy, who is confined to his bed. Police Officer Walter Sumner of Station 19 was also bitten.

WEST POINT CHANCE FOR ENLISTED MEN

Enlisted men of the United States Army who desire to take examinations for admission to West Point, will be sent to Fort Banks for a course of review and preparation on subjects covered by the examination. Be Careful What You Wash Your Hair With "Use Mulsified"

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get Mulsified at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff. Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.

To Bar Russia from Near East Peace Conference

By International News Service.

London, Sept. 21.—Chief of the issues which threaten the proposed Near East peace conference were outlined here today as follows:

1—Demand of the Turkish Nationalist that they occupy Eastern Thrace pending the outcome of the parley.

2—Refusal of the allies to invite Russia to the conference.

3—Reluctance of the British to allow the Greek army to retire from Thrace.

4—Insistence of the British that French and Italian troops no matter how few, stand with the British as a "defensive force" along the Turkish straits.

LOVE TANGLE PUT UP TO HAYS

By Cosmopolitan News Service.

New York, Sept. 21.—Another peculiar stage in the love story of Dorothy Clark and Herbert Rawlinson, motion picture players, has bobbed up in the office of Will H. Hays, movie mentor, who has received a letter from the mother of the young girl sa d to contain a demand that the ruler of the film world take action in her daughter's troubles.

This letter followed the report of a Los Angeles despatch that Dorothy Clark, now Mrs. Elms, and Rawlinson were again on friendly terms, despite the dancer's suit against the latter.

Contents of the letter were kept secret.

"The letter came yesterday," said Courtlandt Smith, secretary to the movie czar. "You now it is a physical impossibility for Mr. Hays to see all his mail. There is a letter here, but it hasn't come into my hands yet. I may get it today or tomorrow. Then we'll see what it says and if the letter comes under a class Mr. Hays considers, we will show him the letter. He may never see it.

"Mr. Hays never, never has and never will pretend to interfere in the personal lives of any of the movie folk. He is not concerned with their personal morals.

"It is impossible for Mr. Hays to keep up with his mail.

"Mr. Hays does not consider indiscriminate letters asking him to settle affairs which he does not claim to supervise. He does not interfere with the actor's personal affairs. He holds a much higher and nobler position."

STARTING MARRIED LIFE ANEW

MR. AND MRS. EMIL J. GAGNON.

The husband was released after serving a few days of a year jail sentence. The wife proved his plea of guilty a mistake.

GAGNON AND HIS BRIDE RETURN TO LAWRENCE

Emil J. Gagnon of Lawrence, who pleaded guilty in the Salem District Court to an offence that he had not committed, and who was exonerated and released through the devoted efforts of his youthful bride, Mrs. Rose Sylvian Gagnon, has returned to his Lawrence home with her to start his married life anew.

Gagnon was arrested just after he married the girl, last July, charged with swearing to false statements in applying for the license. It was charged he had been married and divorced, but that the divorce decree had not become absolute at the time he married Miss Sylvian.

Confused, Gagnon thought this was correct, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to a year in jail. His wife investigated, however, and found the decree had become absolute and that he was free to wed. He was exonerated and released by order of the court.

WINS TRIP ABROAD IN POPULARITY TEST

Among the most prominent passengers who sailed for Europe this week was Mrs. D. Neville Jones. Mrs. Jones recently won a popularity contest and the prize was a trip to Europe. She sailed on the S. S. Resolute from New York, and she plans to visit England, France, Germany and Italy before returning home. Mrs. Jones wore an attractive veil which attracted much attention from other matrons on the ship.

THREE INJURED AS ELEVATOR FALLS

Three persons were slightly hurt and three others shaken up when an elevator cable in the Washburn building, No. 620 Washington street, snapped and let a passenger elevator drop twenty-five feet to the bottom of the shaft.

The following persons were taken to the Relief Hospital, where they were treated and allowed to go home.

Mrs. Alice Reisberg, No. 106 Maplewood avenue, Marlboro; Alex. Mahan, fifteen yeards old, No. 141 Hudson street, South End; Mrs. Lillian Harding, colored, of No. 495 Franklin street, Cambridge, operator of the elevator.

DIVORCEE QUITS SOCIAL WHIRL FOR BUSINESS

Mrs. Norma Loring, Newton society woman, who last week was granted a divorce from her husband, well-to-do Nathaniel Loring, has given up the whirl of pleasure that was formerly hers and has blossomed out as a full-fledged life-insurance saleswoman.

She is doing this, she says, in order to obtain funds with which she may later provide an education for her son, Hyatt, who was awarded to her by the court.

Although she was given alimony of $25 a week, Mrs. Loring says that this will be insufficient for her to send Hyatt to school and college when he grows older, and she is determined that he shall have the best possible education even though he no longer has a father to provide for him.

Nearly attired in costly tailored clothes, Mrs. Loring makes her rounds of offices and homes, meeting many a rebuff, but selling pellets as few beginners are able to do.

OFFICER IN ROLE OF HERO IN RUNAWAY

A run-a-way horse, attached to a milk wagon owned by the H P Hood Company, caused trouble on Washington street, Somerville today. The animal took fright and was heading into a crowd of pedestrians near the Cambridge Bridge, when Traffic Officer Oliver Brennan leaped for the bridle and brought the horse to astop.

The work of the officer was praised by those who saw the daring act. No damage was done to the horse or wagon during the flight. Several collisions were narrowly averted.

ATTACH OPERA STAR'S LUGGAGE BY WIRELESS

New York Sept. 21.—Due to the far reaching arm of the wireless Benjamin Gigli, famous Metropolitan operatic star and successor to Caruso, who arrived from an extended South American tour on board the steamship Colombo, has been deprived of his luggage—temporarily, at least.

According to Major F. H. La Guardia, who represents Gigli, the noted tenor will sail R o De Janeiro contracted with Senor Bennett. Then Gigli decided to sing for a rival impresario. Bennett objected strenuously, but the tenor was adamant. As a result Bennett brought suit for $50,000 from a ruling the Gigli action in ending for the opposition had done him much harm professionally.

Before papers could be served however, Gigli sailed for Italy to fill an engagement. From there he returned to the United States, feeling assured the action was ended and that Bennett had determined to forgive and forget.

The wireless however beat the tenor to it. When Gigli went to claim his luggage at Pier 57 he was informed that it was being held pending an inquiry into the merits of a suit brought by Senor Bennett of Rio de Janeiro. The wireless had done the deed.

"The knife does it." That is the oft-repeated maxim of Edna Wallace Hopper, sixty-two year-old flapper of San Francisco, who advocates facial surgery which cuts away wrinkles and loose flesh from those who are along in years, but who have the hearts of flappers. Edna admits to sixty-two, though "Whos Who" says she was born in 1874, which would make her but forty-eight years old. Edna says it's not how old you are, but how young you can look and feel.

HAINES EMPLOYES AT 'HAP' WARD'S

The employes of the Haines Furniture Company numbering nearly 100 persons, were the guests of the management at a banquet and dance at the hostelry of "Hap" Ward at Lynnfield.

A fleet of motor cars conveyed the happy throng to the hotel, where a sizzling feast had been spread.

Following the dinner, H. B. Simpson, credit manager, who had the arrangements in charge, called upon J. A. Steyn, general manager. Mr. Steyn's talk, in which information of a serious vein was punctuated by frequent witticisms, reviewed the work of the past year and outlined the prospects and purposes of the organization for the ensuing year.

Carl Canner, president of the company, then spoke. He thanked the employes for their loyal and enthusiastic service, and prophesied a great increase in business in the future as a result of the rapid return to prosperity.

Mrs. J. A. Steyn, wife of the general manager, and Mrs. Carl Canner, the president's wife, were guests of honor.

Following the dinner entertainment was provided by Miss MacDonnald, who gave an exhibition of ballet dancing, by Miss Mulligan who gave a "Piano" exhibition, and by Miss Hurley, who rendered a number of vocal selections and demonstrated the newest ball room steps. The entertainment was followed by dancing until a late hour.

So successful was the affair that it was voted to conduct it annually as the "Haines Employes' Amalgamation together."

Neckwear—that lends Distinction and Variety to Man's Attire

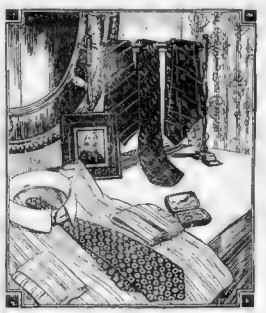
OUR COLLECTION of new neckwear is one of the best we have ever shown. Here you will find ties that are different; that get away from all uniformity except the uniformity of good style.



Diamond Repp Neckties, so called from the shape of the pattern, are especially good this fall—a hand-tailored tie in a big variety of bias stripes, including college colors and new color contrasts—also small Persian patterns in rich colorings, figures and coin spots—also imported crocheted fibre ties that wear well.. 1.50

Swiss Silk Ties, satin bias stripes on dull moire grounds; figures and brocaded effects..... 3.00

Yes, Quality Haberdashery Always Counts!

I've often noticed that you judge a man by the necktie he wears! It certainly gives you a pretty correct idea of his good taste in colors, his sound judgment in quality and his general up-to-dateness! The correct tie, especially the becoming tie that's delivered, gives quality and tone to a man's whole costume. A man with sound judgement in the haberdashery he wears is apt to have equally good judgement in business and sports.

As long as shirts, ties, gloves and hosiery are about the only opportunity we men have for individuality in our dress, just so long will they continue to be almighty important.

I happen to know that the buyer of shirts and ties at the Jordan Marsh Company Men's Store spent some six weeks in Europe this year picking out the best neckwear, ties and shirtings in England and on the continent. I shouldn't be surprised if it were now the best collection of haberdashery in Boston.

By the way, I found the Men's Wear Show in New York last week amazing in interest, style and information. If the Custom Men and Boys' Apparel [illegible] next week is anything like as good it will be well worth a visit. I hope you do not intend to miss it.

Yours for better apparel,

MILLIONAIRE RECTOR LURED BY LOVE FOR GIRL

Revere Husband Traps His Eloping Wife

CAUSES ARREST IN STREET

Two Weeks' Search Ends When Couple Are Caught in New Bedford

New Bedford, Sept. 21.—Persistent detective work on the part of a husband resulted in the arrest here of his wife, Mrs. Irene Monahan of No. 68 Ferry street, Malden, and Edwin H. Stickney of No. 102 Vine street, Everett, on charges of violating the true name law.

The two eloped together on Sept. 8, it is charged, and went to Nantucket, where they remained for several days while Stickney looked for work. Passing to find it, they came here, where Arthur B. Monahan, the woman's husband, found them and caused their arrest.

BOTH HAVE CHILDREN.

Stickney is married and has a three-year-old child while Mrs. Monahan is mother of a fifteen-months-old baby. Mrs. Monahan left her baby with her. The lovers took lodgings at No. 116 Mill street as Mr. and Mrs. Charles Price.

Meanwhile Mrs. Monahan had written a pitiful note to her husband begging her to come to New Bedford and join her with "Prince" and the latter's small capital take a party of four for a trip to the South.

The Nantucket girl, instead of accepting the invitation, turned the letter over to Mr. Monahan. When a taxicab arrived here Mrs. Monahan, Stickney and his chum were standing on a wharf, expecting to meet the Nantucket girl.

TAKES CHILD AWAY.

It read Mr. Monahan stepped off the car, immediately he espied his wife and Stickney he rushed to them and an argument ensued.

Lieutenant La Point stationed at Marion was notified and, learning the nature of the trouble invited the party to the police station, where Stickney and Mrs. Monahan were booked.

Later last evening, Mr. Monahan went to the lodging house where Mrs. Monahan stayed as the wife of another man, and claimed the child. He will return with it to Boston tomorrow after the trial.

Stickney, Mrs. Stella Stickney, at home contemplating the birth of another child and wondering how her charges of non support will take her husband away. She had to appear in court last May and there he was given a year upon the suggestion of the bench. He left for August 27, and he was going to Scranton, Pa., to work on a railroad.

ELECTION PROTEST BY WOMAN

First in History of Commonwealth to File Claim of Irregularities

A woman, charging fraud, deceit and possible corruption, has for the first time in the history of the State, protested the outcome of an election in which she was a candidate.

The protest was filed today by Mrs. Susan E. Stevens of Malden, who was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the House in the recent primaries.

Mrs. Stevens declares she has reason to believe "there were gross irregularities," and that she has been informed on reliable authority that enrolled Democrats voted in Republicans.

She declares in her protest petition that she went to the city clerk and other officials of Malden to secure recount petitions but they refused her that the petitions were unavailable and that she passed her on from one official to another until the seventy-two hour period allowed for filing of a recount petition had elapsed.

WANTS TO BE CANDIDATE.

She petitions the Ballot Law Commission to make such decision as may be necessary to allow her to run as a candidate on election day.

The Democratic town committee of Adams protesting the Republican nomination of Arthur W. Safford for Register of Deeds, asserts it has good reason to believe that Safford's nomination was "procured by deception and fraud."

C. Joseph Harvey, protesting his defeat for the Republican nomination for the House in Winthrop charged that the ballots were counted "of persons who never appeared within the rail."

Edmund L. Welch of Holyoke charges that Representative James F. Sweeney, Democrat, obtained the Republican House nomination by deception. He said that opposite Sweeney's name on the Republican side of the ballot appeared the words, "Present Representative, candidate for Renomination," although Sweeney had never obtained a Republican nomination.

Michael Carchia, who ran against the Lomasney ticket in Ward 5, is up against another battle. He has obtained nomination papers to run as independent against the Lomasney slate but Joseph A. Sullivan protests that the names on his papers are irregular.

The protests filed as a result of the ballot shortage include:

Robert F. Bellamy against John W. McCormack, in the South Boston Senatorial District, Senator Thomas H. Green against Congressman Peter F. Tague, James H. Brennan against Clerk John F. Cronin of the Superior Court, George F. Monahan against William J. Francis in the Charlestown Senatorial District.

ROSE (AT LEFT) AND MARY ANDREWS, WHO TOLD HOW EMPLOYER WAS BEATEN UP

BLOW AIMED AT MAN HITS GIRL IN FACE

Isadore Bagednow, fur salesman with office in the Dexter Building, went to collect $200 from Murray Cohen, likewise a fur salesman, with office in the same building.

Murray was holding tete-a-tete with Miss Rose Andrew, his stenographer and didn't like the interruption nor Issy's demands for cash.

Argument followed. Words led to calling of names and then to blows. Murray went to the floor and Rose stopped, one of Issy's swings with her face.

Rose, accompanied by her sister, Mary, went to Municipal Court to tell Judge Lourie just how Issy had belabored her boss and herself.

Rose angered Issy's attorney to such an extent he asked Issy, on the witness stand, "Were not Cohen and the girl in an embarrassing position when you arrived?"

"Well, their conduct was not becoming to a business house," answered Issy.

Judge Lourie ruled he could tell what he saw, but must not give "characterization."

"I'd rather not say," replied Issy. Judge Lourie found him guilty of assault and filed the case.

HALIFAX FARMER GUILTY OF MURDER

GOO-GOOS RAP HUB DEMOCRATS

Boston Democrats have revealed a "low standard of political morality," according to a statement issued today by the Good Government Association, in the nomination of Joseph G. Pelletier for district attorney on occasion of the statement is unwarranted on a need for funds, and appeals to the public for a fund of $21,000 to finance it during the coming year.

The Pelletier candidacy raises a "no vital issue than did the police men's strike," says the Association, and continues: "But that candidacy only reveals a condition of poor citizenship which will remain to be cured after that candidacy is settled."

SULLIVAN HAS SLIGHT LEAD IN RECOUNT

Louis R. Sullivan and Richard Garvey are running neck and neck in the recount for Democratic nomination for House of Representatives in the Eighteenth Ward in Dorchester. Sullivan, who demanded the recount, is now leading by ten votes, with three more precincts to be counted.

Attorney Stone who stated that he believed that she committed the violation as a result of duress on the part of her husband. The defendant's premises were raided by "dry" agents, who found a 25-gallon still, 200 gallons of mash and eight gallons of shine.

SEALS UP THE CRACKS, TURNS ON THE GAS

Sealing the windows and door, Arthur Aylsworth, twenty-three, turned on the gas and lay down on his bed to die.

Gas seeping through a tiny crack warned the experienced landlord, William Brown, that something was amiss, so he forced the door.

Aylsworth, who is a soft spoken boy from Columbus, Ga., was in serious ill. He was taken to City Hospital. His condition is serious. He lived at No. 30 Waltham street, South End.

Carmine Cardello, No. 105 Cush ng street, Cambridge, for assault with a dangerous weapon upon Mary Camina, 16 years old, of No. 101 Cushing street, was found guilty today by Judge Walton, but his case was ordered placed on file because the court did not believe that Cardello meant to hurt the girl. Miss Ellen Reid, twenty-one-year-old New Haven girl who was arrested in the Hotel Lenox, where she had lived for a week with Frederick Leeds, former rector of the Episcopal Church New Haven, was for nearly two years the minister's secretary at the Connecticut city.

DELANO LAUNCHES TERRIFIC ATTACK ON OLD "L" MANAGEMENT

PUBLIC CONTROL DESIRED

Dorchester Man Warns Against Any Scheme to Turn Road Back to Plunderers

In a terrific attack upon the old private managers of the Boston Elevated, Raymond P. Delano, former president of the Dorchester Board of Trade today warned the State Department of Public Utilities against proposing any legislation that would turn the property back to the plundering, stock-jobbing gang who bought the road to the verge of bankruptcy.

"Complete public ownership of the public utilities," Mr. Delano declared. "The Elevated capital amounts to $15,000,000 on which dividends and rentals of 6 and 8 per cent are being paid.

"The State can take over that property and, on the financing of it alone could save $1,750,000 a year which could be used for the benefit of the car riders and the citizens and towns served by the Elevated.

ROAD BETTER RUN.

"I am opposed to the public control act, but I want to admit that the road is being run by the present trustees far better than it was ever run by the old gang of private managers.

"I'll take chances with public ownership against the kind of foolish gang that had the stockholders' management of the men of the Ware and Richards type. I would not fare to go into the public treasury and not into as trustees either.

"A stock broker recently told me that only six out of every 100 people who go into the stock market come out whole. I would be for letting our people to own the roads of the Commonwealth, paying them steady and guaranteed dividends, than to filet with the stock of any public service corporation that is manipulated by men behind the scenes.

FATTENING UP THE COW.

"Don't give us back to the private owners a rehabilitated trade. The Elevated was a pretty lean cow when the public took over its management. Now it is being fattened, and, if the old gang ever get hold of it again, they will run it down and turn it back into the same pasture to be fattened up again."

Sees Jane Addams Taking President Harding's Job

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 21. Criticising the present military policy of the United States as "interfering with the effectiveness of our entire scheme of national defense," the Military Order of the World War demanded at its convention that Congress provide for a standing army of 175,000 men and 17,000 officers as recommended by General Pershing. The order is composed of veteran officers.

General H. J. Rley denounced the attitude of the administration.

"If things continue to go on in Washington as they have been recently," he said, "we can expect to see Miss Jane Addams as President and William Z. Foster as Vice-President or Secretary of War."

WILL KEEP UP BONUS FIGHT IN CONGRESS

Washington, Sept. 21.—For a third time the soldiers' bonus legislation has failed of enactment, but the fight to pass it again is on.

The Senate sustained President Harding's veto of the Fordney-McCumber bill, the vote of 44 to 28 falling short of the two-thirds majority that would have been necessary to have made it a law without executive approval.

Five hours before the Senate acted the House overrode the veto, 258 to 54.

The action of the Senate makes impossible veterans' compensation legislation at least until the next session of Congress, which will be in regular session in December.

Many see, however, it is the purpose of some proponents to continue the fight and the House may become an active arena of the congressional sensational campaigns this Fall.

Senators Lodge and Walsh, of Massachusetts, voted to pass the bill over the veto.

ROBS FRUIT MAN OF $10 BY CLEVER RUSE

The police are searching for a man who, about twenty-two years of age, who robbed Myer Chemsky, proprietor of a fruit store at No. 1 Causeway street, of $10 through a clever ruse. This man went to the fruit store and asked that a dozen pears be sent to him at No. 42 Sumner street. When a boy arrived with the fruit, he took it and told the lad to go back and get another dozen pears and change for a ten dollar bill. When the lad came back from the second trip, the man took the money and disappeared. After waiting for several minutes, the boy notified the police.

FRANCE SCORED BY LODGE FOR AID TO TURKS

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 21.—France is playing a dangerous game with the interests of the Turks when it demands protests the distaste with which the offensive domestic policies of the Turks are viewed in the United States.

This was the judgment today of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Democrat, of Nebraska, its ranking Democrat member.

Both severely condemned any understanding between a Christian nation like France with the Mohammedan Kemal Pasha without which they declared the Turkish commander would not have dared to threaten an attack upon Constantinople.

JUSTIFY BRITAIN.

Senator Lodge deplored not only the moral support accorded the Turks by France, but the whole foreign policy of the French which appeared more provocative of war than of peace, recalling that not only had the French Parliament failed to ratify the treaty of Sevres, by which it was intended to virtually banish the Turks from Europe, but that it had not yet even indicated any intention of approving the naval reduction treaty agreed to at the Washington arms conference.

Both Lodge and Hitchcock agreed there could be no justification of the French military policy when permitted a virtual entente between France and Turkey and they held that Great Britain was entirely right in assuming the attitude that the Turks must keep clear of the Dardanelles.

"The Ottoman Turks have been in Europe since the fifteenth century," said Lodge. "In the days of their early success, they were a scourge to Christendom. In the long centuries of the decay they have been the pest and curse of Europe, the source of innumerable wars, the executioners in countless massacres.

"The Turks are brave soldiers and good fighting men, but there passes our sense. There is not one word to be said in defence of the Turkish rulers. Whatever they have tried to ruin trade, industry, commerce, the arts and civilization have withered away. They have preyed upon the Christian nations of Europe. They have been the cause of many wars.

"The massacres of which they have been guilty almost surpass belief and description. They form a curse to mankind civilization like a pestilence that have breathed forth contagion and I trust we shall soon see the last of them in Europe."

Fred Glueckach, the husband, was served with papers January 27 last, in the action which has now been discontinued, naming as co-respondent an old lady of about fifty' of Carmel, Cal.

"I clothed him," said Mme. Matzenauer in a statement at that time, "showered him with gifts and presents, made him live the life of a prince, and in gratitude for all this he served me——"

Glueckach, who before his marriage had been employed as a chauffeur, vigorously denied Mme. Matzenauer's allegations.

"A WILD MUSTARD."

"I'd rather be a chauffeur in California," he said, explaining his separation from Mme. Matzenauer, "than to dwell forever in the palaces of Babylon. Orchids will thrive in hothouses, but wild mustard feeds the California sun. Besides, living on the crickets which grand opera stars frequent means living on skim milk and appetizers."

Mme. Matzenauer's first husband was Eduardo Ferrari Fontana, operatic tenor, who married her in 1912 and whom she divorced in 1918, naming [illegible] co-respondent.

GERMAN SOCIALISTS WOULD JOIN LEAGUE

Geneva, Sept. 21 (By the Associated Press).—News received here that the German Socialist government will called upon the German government to apply for admission to the League of Nations has aroused a great interest in league quarters. Delegates who have taken the most active part in the work of the assembly expressed the opinion today that Germany would be invited to membership if she applied.

Nothing is so vital to the health and physical and mental well-being of a child as the food it eats! Don't neglect it! Robust children are the result of proper nourishment! Many foods that fill American tables today can never produce a strong, rugged race because life-sustaining elements have been destroyed.

In Kellogg's delicious whole-wheat KRUMBLES—with the full, enticing whole-wheat flavor for the first time in food history—you have the most perfectly balanced health food ever made! KRUMBLES contain every food element the body demands! KRUMBLES build strong, rugged bodies through making red blood and bone and tissue!

Every child should eat KRUMBLES every day! It is important that every member of your family should eat KRUMBLES because KRUMBLES renew the strength of workers and sustain the aged as nothing else can! All grocers sell KRUMBLES!

The only whole-wheat food with a delicious flavor!

Naturally the Kaiser wants somebody to whom he can tell every day how great he used to be. What the lady will get out of it is hard to see, except that her name will be mentioned in all German churches in which prayers are still offered for the royal family.

GREEK CHAMPION BATTLES POLISH GIANT IN BIG MAT BOUT

KOTSONAROS HOPES TO WIN OVER RODACKY

By JACK CONWAY.

George Kotsonaros, latest Greek wrestling sensation, will make a mighty effort to continue his winning siege when he battles Ivan Rodacky, Polish giant, in a finish match at the Grand Opera House tonight under the direction of the Old Howard management.

Sam Smith.

Kotsonaros weighs 240 pounds. He is the Greek light-heavyweight champion and has whipped Jimmy London, the idol of the local Greek colony.

Kotsonaros showed here last week, defeating Carlos Gonzales, wrestler of Hispanic style. The Greek easily won the first fall from Gal [illegible] with a body slam and a half nelson. He [illegible] the lightweight champion.

I shall not be disappointed and force Calvin Curtin to meet Ellis Eaton Texas.

Before the Greek title holder can hope to receive consideration for Gus Sonnenberg's crown, he must defeat Rodacky. The latter will have all the physical advantages in his favor to [illegible]. He weighs around 215 pounds, and is taller and bigger in every way than the Greek favorite.

As the match will be to a [illegible] finish, best two falls out of three, Kotsonaros is in for a busy session.

Frank Lurich, Lithuanian wrestler, will battle Arthur Davis of Boston in the semi-final, while in the curtain raiser Louie Andrews, Greek lightweight champion, will oppose Joseph D'Noah of East Boston.

Sam Smith will referee all the bouts.

Mike O'Dowd Only Ghost of His Former Self

Mike O'Dowd, former middleweight champion, is a boxing wreck, according to reliable information this writer has received from New York.

O'Dowd was to have met Tony Rosenberg at Brooklyn Tuesday night, but the latter called off the match at the last minute. Tony was due to the belief held by many of the fans that the boxing commission would not permit Mike to fight.

O'Dowd has been of little value as a boxer since he lost to Johnny Wilson at Madison Square Garden. For fifteen rounds Wilson subjected O'Dowd to the toughest body punishment a man ever stood up under.

Those fans who saw Wilson win a popular decision over O'Dowd at Washington Building can not very well realize what a champion Johnny turned in the St. Louis ring when they met again in New York.

Wilson's left hand, swinging in a semi-circle, kept crashing into the pit of O'Dowd's stomach. Mike suffered the utmost agony, but managed to continue the battle. On several occasions he cried "foul" to the referee, but his protests were not allowed.

O'Dowd, a wild open fighter, was unable to order for the middleweight champion. Wilson was able to remain on the defense and count heavily with his left to the body as O'Dowd plunged forward in a hopeless battle.

O'Dowd's Courage Won Him Many Admirers

O'Dowd, as champion, was an idol with the fans. This was due to his wonderful courage. He did not know the meaning of the word quit. He kept going forward no matter how great the odds against him.

Jack Britton, welterweight champion, defeated O'Dowd in several no decision bouts. A wide open, punching fighter like O'Dowd never has a chance against the Morgan entry.

Joe Egan won a decision over O'Dowd before the latter became champion. Joe was beaten soundly for nine rounds. Egan was rather astonished he was not knocked out which seemed to give him courage. He then went in and fought the way he was capable of fighting and gave O'Dowd a boxing lesson, scoring a knockdown among other things.

Eagan might have been a champion if he had possessed half as much courage as O'Dowd.

The sad part about O'Dowd's passing from the front ranks of the fistic game is that to be "broke" with the exception of a few real estate holdings in St. Paul.

Mike, like most of the ring men of old, was a good fellow when he had it.

All of which does not get a man, broken in health and in spirit, anything in the Autumn of life as he turns his face towards the setting sun.

Jack Conway Picks Kotsonaros to Win on Mat

W		L

Now that the gallant wrestlers are battling for fame and glory once more, Jack Conway has wiped some of the cobwebs off his wrestling dope sheets and set himself for a busy season in the grand old Prophet's League.

"Hop up to the Grand Opera House tonight and give this boy Kotsonaros the once over tonight," says Jack. "The Greek champion is a real marvel. He's even better than Jimmy London, which is saying a whole lot.

"The Greek title holder will beat Rodacky, Polish giant, some twenty-five pounds tonight and try to pin his shoulders to the mat twice in their finish bout.

"Some of the wise boys figure that the Pole will make Kotsonaros look Greasy. Maybe so, but we have to be shown. We are letting the family reputation ride on Kotsonaros.

"Lurich is our selection for the semi final."

A man whose trousers
Were extremely baggy
Stood on a curbstone
While another watched.
Finally the second
Unable to stand the strain
Approached him and said
"Well, go ahead and jump."
Certainly any of us
Might have been that man
For baggy trousers
Are a failing
Almost as common
As spattering grapefruit
Over the scenery,
Or slicing your drive
Or laughing even when
You miss the point.
The reason is simple—
We INTEND to get
Our trousers pressed
But forget it
And put it off—
So that, like getting a haircut

Goes under the bridges
From the time of "intending"
To the time of "attending."
But now that

And the "plenty" coming

ARENA MATCHES SHEVLIN AND TRAMBITAS

The Arena A. C. has arranged to have Alex Trambitas, Roumanian welterweight, clash with Eddie Shevlin at its next show Monday night. Already Trambitas is hard at his training and expects to reduce on rounds prior to entering the ring with the Roxbury professor. The Shevlin-Trambitas match was made because Dave Shade would not fight owing to the fact that Al Norton will box Paul Dovle in New York Saturday night and could not get out of the match, the Arena Club, rather than take any chances with injury and eleventh hour substitutions, offered Trambitas the match with Shade. The Roumanian accepted, for hardly more than a year ago Dave ran out on a bout with him in Portland, Ore., and he has since been looking for a shot at him.

If it Shade and his mentor, Leo P. Flynn said "nothing doing," Shevlin has been in training steadily for two weeks and agreed to accept Joe McCarthy's protegee for Monday night.

When Trambitas tackled Steve Lazo last Monday night it was his first real bout in almost a year. His condition was not what it should have been, but the bout took nothing out of him and as a result he is due to step right into the gymnasium on Tuesday and start training again.

Jack Dempsey Says Newer Form of Iron Increases Strength

Jack Dempsey says: "In building up rugged strength, power and endurance there is nothing like filling your blood with strength giving iron. I firmly believe that it puts added power behind my punch."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital, (Out Door Department), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, in commenting on Dempsey's statement says: "No man without plenty of good red blood can obtain health-giving and strength-building iron can go through life filled with vigor, force and power."

"I very thinking person should realize if men aspire all to be like Dempsey, Joe Wheeler, Harry Wagner and dozens of other leaders in the world's sport have helped to maintain their supremacy by the use of iron power from it now we take a careful analysis, how much more important it is for the average man to see that there is a lack of iron in his blood. By FREDERICK G. LIEB.

Everett Scott, Yankee shortstop comes pretty close to being the perfect White Sox shortstop. Were we a manager of a World's Series contender, we would rather have Scott at short than any other player since the passing of Hans Wagner.

Scott never pulled a base to be an old saying among the Red Sox fans as Scott, without doubt, is the greatest all-round ball player ever had in the American League by any club. During the time he has played in the American League he has averaged just around 150 games per season, and often played in every game.

During the 1918 World's Series between the Red Sox and Dodgers, Babe Ruth, Boston's home run king, nicknamed him "Iron Man" Scott.

Ruth and Scott played through sixteen World's Series games in 1915, 1916 and 1918, during which the former team, the Red Sox, lost only four games.

During those sixteen games Scott made only two errors. Taking both of them in the same game, the fifth contest of the 1916 series.

Scott never has done much World's Series hitting as he only hit .185 in 1915, .125 in 1916 and .procured in 1918, making but five hits in the three series combined. But Scott is a wizard as a fielder and a base runner. He has been as a defensive player, especially behind tight pitching, one of the season's record makers.

Scott is a better base liver than Babe Ruth, Dave Bancroft of the Giants, as he has been a St. Louis in the American League for years.

Next to Lajoie, Babe Ruth, Dave Bancroft, Rabbit Maranville, Ty Cobb, Tris Speaker and Eddie Collins, as the best ball players in baseball, Scott is the best shortstop in the National League. Any one question, I consider Scott the most complete player all around of any player in baseball. He is a faster man on the bases.

Bancroft, great shortstop that he is, however, becomes the nervous, high-strung type. Dave at times loses control of himself and his fielding is not so good. Scott never has been quite erratic and he would take as many chances as Scott.

The St. Louis Browns need have no worry about their shortstop department should Ellis Gerber team with Scott long enough to beat out the Yankees. Gerber belongs to the class of players, who are not generally appreciated. St. Louis fans know what he can do, but outside of the Mound City a lot of persons look upon Walter as just a fair shortstop. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Gerber can play as deep a short stop as any player in the game and can field behind second base for hard driven balls as well as any shortstop since Jack Barry's day. Gerber also can extract as much from a .267 batting average as any player in the game. Gerber is not considered as one of the big St. Louis stars, however, although he is one of the best all-around players in the game.

Everett Scott.

FINAL GAME TONIGHT FOR TWILIGHT TITLE

Fireworks tonight at Little River playgrounds Lynn, when the North Cambridge Knights of Columbus meet the former All-Stars in the fifth wind-up game of the Little World Series for the championship flag of the Twilight League.

Great excitement prevails among the many admirers of the two teams. They have been trailing them all season and threaten to the last four contests of the final series.

The Knights of Columbus started off with a rush and the baseball followers thought it was all over when the Captain aggregation gathered in the first two games last week.

However, the All-Stars showed that they were game and came back by evening up things.

Now the question in everybody's mind is who will do the flinging for these teams. Al Davidson did his stuff in the last two nights for the Shoe City team. He must rest. The Cornet fans will see either Bill Hayes or Bobbie Stickles take a turn on the hill.

The Knights of Columbus team's Tommy Fitzgerald, Jimmy Linehan, Batchelder and Eddie Gil. The last named batted on the day and put a fine ball game to the Cornet's 2 to 1 Batchelder is out of the running after the slaughter last night. It is possible Leahy will use Gill. He may take a chance and throw one of the Fitzgerald boys in the box.

After the great comeback of the Cornet team it is sure that one of the largest crowds of the season will be on hand for the final game. It is intended to start at 7 o'clock sharp.

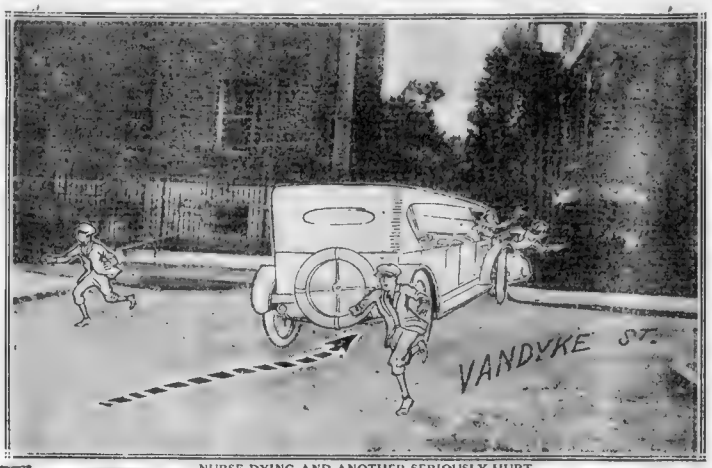
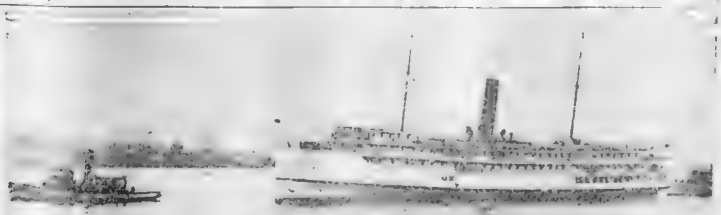
TWO NURSES NEAR DEATH WHEN YOUTHS LEAP FROM 'WILD AUTO'



NURSE DYING AND ANOTHER SERIOUSLY HURT when run down by auto started by playful youths! Photo diagram shows how the machine dashed into a narrow roadway off Van Dyke treet, Roxbury, when the frightened children fled after stepping on the starter. Mrs. Alice Wells received a fractured skull and is at the City Hospital. Bessie Guyash suffered a fracture of several ribs. Both live on Binney street.



S. S. CALVIN AUSTIN Will Be Laid Up for Week as a Result of Cape Cod Canal Accident! The Boston-New York passenger craft, which broke her rudder off when the swift current of the stream crashed her against one of the banks, is being inspected by experts today at Fore River. In the meanwhile her place will be taken by either the S. S. Governor Dingley or the S. S. Belfast. The accident caused a flurry of excitement, but the passengers displayed coolness throughout. The Calvin Austin is shown being towed into port by a tug. Among the passengers aboard were "Baby" Vernick and Mrs. Harry Vernick, shown at right.

TODAY'S FASHION HINT! The Fashion Art League has approved this charming afternoon gown of orchid colored silk lace, over crepe de chine of the same shade. A picture hat of a like hue and metal slippers brocaded in pastel shades complete the outfit.

HELP CUT DOWN THE alarming increase in accidents to children! Stealing rides, "hanging on behind," and clinging to the rear of auto trucks while riding a bicycle are some of the hazardous habits among Greater Boston youth that the public safety organizations are fighting to stop. John Yeadon, a messenger boy, shown above how scores of youngsters are killed every year. The police can make a good start by arresting every youth caught risking his life in this manner.

BLAME IT ON Atlantic City! As a result of the daring costumes, or lack of costumes, worn by the cherubs at the Atlantic City beauty pageant, morality leagues throughout the country have united to force girls who appear at public exhibitions to don more clothing. Thus, the patrons of Boston and New York's "Bohemian Balls" must watch their step—and their garb. Here is Cecil Evans wearing one of the costumes that drew scowls from the moralists. Cecil won a prize with this pirate outfit.

THE RECORD FOR DARing steeple jack work is being set at the American Sugar Refinery, South Boston, where the giant smoke stack is being cleaned. The heavy wind makes the work extremely dangerous. Larry Doody, in circle, is one of the three workers. They are shown on staging near top.

PEASE'S ATTORNEY Prepares for Bitter Legal Fight! Robert W. Nason, counsel for the accused husband, awaits a pathological report of the tragedy before divulging his line of defence.

LIKE THE DEVICE FOR PERPETUAL MOTION, ENgines That Run on "Nothing" Pop Up Every Day! This machine shown with its inventor, Albert E. Poff of Cincinnati, is called a geometrical generator and is said to possess boundless power. Mr. Poff, with the ardor and enthusiasm of all inventors for their brain child, says it will run autos without gasoline and revolutionize the industry. (International News Reel)

BOSTON UNIVERSITY OPENS WITH RECORD ENROLLMENT IN EVENING classes! Economic conditions and the fact that many of last year's day students have obtained good positions are responsible for this. The day entering class is fully as large as the record breaking group of last year. Man and Maid — By Elinor Glyn

START THIS NEW STORY TODAY

Sir Nicholas Thormonde, a wealthy Englishman, wounded and blinded in one eye in action, starts writing his diary in Paris while the war is still on. He is sick of life. The war has robbed him of all that a young man can find of joy. He lives to divorce himself in the company of several women friends, who, he feels, seek his company for his money and not for the love he craves. He starts to write a book and hires a typist, Miss Sharp. He begins to fall in love with her.

Now Go On With the Story

SHE began a fox trot, she played it with unaccountable spirit and taste, so that the sound did not jar me—but the inference hurt a little. I said nothing, however.

Then she gave "Sniffles" and some sweet commonplace air said it sorts of things to me—Desire to live again and dance, and en my foolish pleasures—How could this little iceberg of a girl put so much development into the way she touched the keys? If it had not been for the interest this problem caused me the feeling the sounds aroused in me to be human again would have driven me mad.

No one who can play dance can play with that can be so cold as stone—

From it she suddenly turned to Debussy—she played a most difficult thing of his. I can remember its name—then she stopped.

Do you like Debussy?" I asked.

No, not always

Then why do you play it?"

I happened to know well."

If you had said in plain words, I think you are a rotter who wants to get rid of me, then an unresponsive modern desperate brutality never set of disharmonies, you could have expressed your opinion of me more pointedly."

She remained silent—I could raise her eyes.

I leaned back in my chair perhaps I gave a short harsh laugh—I cannot be sure—I am conscious that I had made some ex who found back to the piano and began Waltzes and so on, and the same strains of course over me that I ex when I heard the cooing of My nerves must be of wire with wax. This is the way to break the to punish the lamp—yell

She turned back to the piano. Then a longing to break something shook me—smash the lamp—yell aloud.

My mind jumped to Maurice as the starting-link—the Duchess of Lyne might have been dead but I never have seen evil in of Maurice. How did know my name was interesting?

Maurice—you had a marriage or some love affair with her—I have observed them so much in the passage, but nothing I should have encountered Mau

I feared not ask who was her former

"I work for several days then and then I have no ideas. It is a pretty poor business anyway—and it is not

Days and nights passed, and still more days and nights, in which the man, bound from head to foot in soft wrappings soaked in unguents, tossed and raved, screaming for water, tearing at the bed linen which to his distorted mind was alive with every conceivable insect, beating blindly at the faces of the two women who, refusing any help was given and tended Jack Wetherbourne through his days of distress.

His lips moved, though no sound was to be had no sound came from them so that Mary had to put her ear close to his parts of his head, before she could from the riff-raff of his delirium. Jack—Jack—I'm here, I'm here, and so only stroke her head

I will marry you Jack dear as soon as we find Jill."

Wetherbourne made a feeble and unsuccessful attempt to frown, and then turned his eyes as Mary turned her head on the opening of the door between the bedroom and the sitting room.

In the doorway stood the bewildering picture of an Eastern woman

Wrapped round in the voluminous cloak of the East with the face and head veils hiding all but her eyes, she stood quite still as Lady Sarah hustled across the room towards her, and Mary held up a warning hand

WHEN A GIRL MARRIES —By ANN LISLE

TOM laughed. It was a queer laugh, with a note of bitterness in it. As I heard it, I found myself wondering how much Daisy Condon meant to hide.

Perhaps it was she and not Irene Warren who had fiercely engaged Tom's errant affections. I had seen a letter from Irene, and I had seen Tom's answer. I knew that he was interested in Irene, and I had thought that she was interested in him. But now I was not so sure. Perhaps Tom had been playing with Irene, and Irene had been playing with Tom, and Daisy Condon had been playing with both of them.

"Tom," I said, "I'm sorry. I'm awfully sorry. I'm such an ass.

"Not at all, not at all right now—I ought to go back to my work," he said curtly.

I nodded, and she went softly from the room. When I was alone I spent every bit of my will to myself analyzed the situation. Miss Sharp loathes me—I cannot hold her by any means if she decides to go—The only way is to keep her near me is by reminding her the cool employer and to do this I must see her and as much as possible—I am the personal disinterested one who can assist me to realize my dream—I must be a different man—the physical man—and not the one so am I and am bound to make a consummate fool of myself.

When I was alone my thoughts and the phrases came and I was busy, wet and weary and impossible I met Miss Sharp at breakfast. I knew a wait funk at it—I felt the shock at the first sight of her—I was really frightened—I wish I knew what it was and could crush it out of myself.

If I could only fight against it—that was the best sensation—the battle—I could do something with it—but I must keep my mouth shut and do nothing—I cannot remember this—I don't know specifically—I only remember part of the day was—but how one short hour—how endless—it did that.

Would it be better to end it and go on, quiet? But where could I go—I am sure I should be dead. I am beginning to be keen in remembrance but no queer things happened among the fellows—I suppose I'd been born as an ugly sort of soul as I am now I played some of the games with the others and read it up—perhaps that might give you a—

"Yes—she is wonderfully diligent—it is impossible to dislodge her for a moment from her work—she thinks me a poor creature I expect."

The Duchess's eyes, half-shut now, were watching me keenly.

"Why should she think that, Nicholas—you can't 'after all, fight."

Desert Love — By JOAN CONQUEST

NIGHT with her blessed wind had come at last, which means coolness for a space beneath the stars, and oblivion for a while in sleep for those who have untroubled heart and good digestion.

There was just one black patch on all the silvery stretch of sand, upon which the moon shone, a patch that came neither from rock nor tree nor good and which moved incessantly in fitful jerks, until it raised itself and collapsed again, and spread itself in a still stranger shape as from under neath garments which had the form of arms and legs and dark-skinned feet, which fell apart, there crawled a man

"Mary"

ROMANCE OF A BOSTON BUSINESS GIRL

By Elenore Meherin

Start This Story Today

MARY KELLY wins the post of private secretary to HALL DAWSON, a dynamic promoter with offices in Water street. She instinctively fears him. After the conclusion of a big deal he calls her his mascot and gives her a check for $100, which she accepts with misgivings. Reassured by Dawson, however, she plunges into her work, dreaming of the day she will be his partner. Mary goes to see the parade of the returning Yankee Division and meets PAT SULLIVAN, her childhood sweetheart. JACK MAHONEY, a young millionaire, declares his love for her. Pat takes Mary riding and she realizes she loves him only. She receives a letter of proposal from Mahoney and answers it with a refusal. Pat has a row with Dawson. Mary sits for her portrait to Allan Bruce. Dawson insults her at his house and Mrs. Dawson orders her out. She receives a letter from Pat telling her he loves her.

I WASN'T afraid of Dawson, but an anger that was cold, relentless like iron hardened about me. I saw in him only what he had done to me; to Pat.

"Don't look at me like that, Mary. Golly, I'm sorry! I'd give an eye if she hadn't seen it. I tried to get you out before she began. If I said a word [illegible] she would have raised the neighborhood."

"Don't apologize, Mr. Dawson. Give me the check if you've brought it."

He reached in his pocket, taking out a wallet. Slowly he went through a stack of letters.

"I've got it here, Mary. Been hanging around an hour in the hope of seeing you. Can't you say a word? By golly, I never did a thing like that before, did I? I don't know what came over me. I was just crazy with joy over that deal——"

"Give me the check, Mr. Dawson."

"Listen, Mary—you're not gonna quit me like this, are you? Let me down cold right in the midst of a deal? I can't get along without you. You've got all the dope. The whole scheme'll blow up!"

I was walking quickly from him, trembling with revulsion. He kept step with me.

"I'm not asking you to come back to the office. You couldn't do that. Hard raise the devil. I'm gonna send your desk out here and you can work at home. Wants get out a booklet—"

He had singled out an envelope from the stack of letters. The fear that he might become angry and put the check book in his pocket beset me. I put out my hand for it.

"Give me the check, Mr. Dawson. I need it. I've been waiting for it. I knew you'd send it."

"You did, Mary. Thanks for anyway. I'm not bad—look at it. Didn't kick you on the bonus." An overwhelming sense of relief, of freedom, like almost weaken me, unnerving me.

"Thanks," I said hurrying to our door. He caught my arm.

"Gee, Mary, I'm sorry. You poor kid. Not gonna hold that against me forever, are you? I'll send out the desk tomorrow. Gonna give you a raise, too. Make it $175 a month—how's that?"

"No I can't do it. I have another job. I'll write a letter giving you all I have on the fur and explaining the files on the patent oven. Good night."

"Wait, girlie!" His breath charged, a white glow spread over his face. I pulled my hand from him. "Gawd, Mary! Gimme a chance—listen!"

"I can't, Mr. Dawson. I have to go in. Good night."

"You'll write the letter, Mary? I'll come out for it." He stood at the bottom of the steps looking up at me.

"I'll mail it."

"Listen, Mary—"

I shook my head. He put on his hat and walked slowly down the street.

I opened the door softly, and went into my room to open Dawson's letter. My hands trembled so I could scarcely hold the envelope. My pay check for the half month dropped out. There was another check fastened to a letter—a check for $100.

bonus due you on the prospectus. I think it will equal your expectations. I am sorry for the unpleasant episode that marred the deal. Nothing like that will ever happen again. Sincerely yours,

"HALL DAWSON"

The check was four times what I expected.

I tore it quickly in my pocket. Perhaps it was a bait to keep me in his employ. Its actually the right amount for me working for him. No wonder. I had increased his profits probably seemed full return to him that I would resent the almost physical contrast his liberality and mine.

I thought I could repel him with delicacy. Or might as well hope to tell a prize fighter with chocolates. The only rebuff some men accept is a blow between the eyes. To them forbearance is but veiled acquiescence.

No matter what Dawson thought, I was going to keep that $100. I felt it was justly earned this time.

Now I could wait a little longer. Tuesday morning I left the house at 8 o'clock, intending to visit all the employment agencies.

I went only to the company where Miss Garrison, the woman who promised to speak for the place as private secretary, was in charge.

"I'll know today," she said brightly. "I think you'll get it."

At 9 o'clock five girls had come in and were sitting at typewriters waiting for jobs. They would take positions at $100 a month. One girl expected $175. By 3 o'clock every one of them had been placed. The desks were empty. When the last girl went out it gave me the queerest feeling of loneliness—of abandonment.

"Don't lose hope," Miss Garrison encouraged. "You'll land one next."

At 5 o'clock she came to my desk.

"I'm awfully sorry," her face was sober. "You'll have to come again tomorrow. We'll try something else. Mr. Kinsley is going to New York. He won't need a secretary for three months. Of course you can't wait for that."

I picked up my papers, almost running out of the place, ready to cry with disappointment and fear. I might wait weeks before I would get a job paying more than $100 a month.

When I reached home there was a letter for me.

Dear Mary, I'll make that $200 a month. Must have you—Hall Dawson.

"I'll have it for you Friday. I'm sorry to make you come back."

"Dear Mary—This check is the

It was Hall Dawson.

As I stood at the bureau reading Hall Dawson's brief message I heard ma talking to some one at the front door. "Yes, I'll have it for you then sure. I've never kept you before."

"Who was that, ma?" I followed her into the kitchen.

"You look better, ma." She had gone to bed early and was asleep when I left in the morning. I had no chance to give her the check Dawson had brought out, as I had planned it to her market basket in the kitchen.

"Ma, who was that?" I repeated "Who?"

"At the door as I came in."

She was kneeling on the floor before the oven, basting the meat. "It was the collector for the installment on the stove and carpet."

"Why didn't you pay him? It's only $12, isn't it?"

She looked at me, the corners of her mouth quivering down, her sweet eyes filling.

"I didn't have it, Mary. I haven't $12 in the world."

"Ma." I ran over to the slate. The check was still there. "Didn't you see this, darling?" I left it there this morning. You were asleep. Dawson didn't pay us till last night." I shoved the check into her hand.

I put my arm around her. She wiped her eyes, making a pathetic attempt to smile. . . .

"What would I do without you, Mary? Oh, it breaks my heart to put all the burden on you. . . ."

"The idea, ma!" I was trying to talk lightly, but my own voice was shaking with the alarm that was growing hysterical as the days passed and no call came for me.

I went into my room and pinned Dawson's note under the paper with the bonus. A salary of $200 a month—it seemed a fabulous sum.

It began to frighten me the hold that vision of $200 a month had taken on my imagination. I could feel the money in my hand. But no sooner had I decided half consciously to take it than I shrank back whipped by the memory of Dawson's eyes, his hands, his breath, his wife's terrible voice. I wouldn't take it—not if it were $300.

"Think of it—$200 a month." The phrase beat, tempting, insistent against my ears. I was fighting.

"I must have to take it." I told myself. He can't make me. I should at least be crazy to think of refusing. I'll take it!"

But I knew I wouldn't take it. Not with an hour's reflection. Pat's face seared on my brain, but with the feel of his hands hot iron on mine. I had myself [illegible] was gone but underneath I knew I wouldn't give up. He must come back to me. If I took Dawson's gift I would lose him forever. He would never let me [illegible] Dawson would never convince him against what he had seen.

I got off the car and ran to our house. Why had I waited, hesitated?

I sat down at the table and wrote to Dawson.

"I have another position. I will not consider your offer under any circumstances."

I went quickly to the corner postbox and dropped the letter.

"Now you're [illegible] Mary. [illegible] mind now. I [illegible] you [illegible] yourself. He doesn't want you, anyway."

But I felt cleansed, freed from the horror of that night. I sat down and wrote—wrote without a stop both, freely. He would have come. It was my last stand.

"Dear Pat: If I could ask one thing on this earth it would be this—that you might see me that night as I was that you might come back and listen. For I love you. Nothing else matters. My heart is yours with a completeness that leaves me no thought, no wish for anything but you.

"You went away believing evil because of what you saw. You did not see all. Oh, if you knew the agony of that night, the terror of it, you would never have left me. You saw me standing at the window. For that I am to blame. I was so blind—so stupid I never dreamed that he might have a motive for his actions. I thought no more of his arm on my shoulder than if it were his curtain flapping against me. I stood there and looked and he stood next to me pointing out the lighthouse. I had no thought for him; no care. I was thinking of you.

"You saw this much, Pat, and you have judged me. I was so helpless in all that followed as you standing without [illegible] window were. No torment could have been more terrible to me than the pressure of his arms.

"Can you really think I went from you to his room knowing that this would be? Oh, you can't. You know that I love you and never even in a thought have I been untrue to that love of you.

"When you closed the door and went from me, when I heard the roadster start and knew that you were really gone—gone without even saying good-by, I prayed to die. All that was glad in life went with you. You took my heart.

"You spoke of Allan Bruce, Pat. He kissed my arm and that was all. I was more amazed than you seeing it, were. I never courted attention from him. I never thought or cared for any man but you. From the moment you kissed me that glorious day of the homecoming I lived in the thought of you. I would have to get rid of my life to shove you from me.

"I can say no more about this. You cannot believe less. I would no more go to Dawson to work after that night than I would pick up a snake and caress it. It took me a long time to see him as he was. And I have suffered for my stupidity.

"Pat, if you could know the anguish of these days, if you love me as you say, you would believe that I have well atoned for my stupidity. I have read your letter a hundred times, loving the pain and the joy of it, holding to it as though it were your hand outstretched; listening to it as though it were your voice.

"I love you. . . ."

I mailed it. I waited. He would get the letter Tuesday. He might send a wire. Then I would hear on Wednesday. If he wrote, it would be ten days. I could wait—wait for the answer that was never to be.

Where He Was Wrong

He was thinking what a pretty picture she made as she stood in the doorway.

"Papa, dear," she hoped, "I've dithscovered what I'm going to give you for your birthday prethent."

"Have you, darling?" he said.

"Yeth, papa," the little girl answered. "A beautiful new china thaving mug, with pretty flowerth on it."

"But papa has a shoe one like that—a very beautiful one."

"Oh, no, he hathn't," replied the little maid. "I've futh dwopped it!"

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Wyeth's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair began to fade, or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is musy and occasions disappointment. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old prescription, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Hot Water And Magnesia The Best Stomach Medicine

Bicarbonated Magnesia Neutralizes the Dangerous Stomach Acids That Cause Indigestion

Medical authorities are now practically agreed that stomach trouble and indigestion should never be treated with artificial digestents and medicines that weaken the natural power of digestion, but instead the stomach should be kept sweet and clean and its excess acid neutralized so that food may digest normally and pass from the stomach as nature intended.

Practically all indigestion is caused by an excess of acid in the stomach which causes the food to sour and ferment, bringing on gas, bloating, heartburn, sharp pains and a dull, heavy, listless feeling. Neutralize and drive out this dangerous acidity and all the disagreeable symptoms will quickly cease.

Men and women who suffer after eating are urged to drink after every meal a teaspoonful of hot water with a teaspoonful or two tablets of pure Bicarbonated Magnesia in it as a sure and safe corrective means of preventing the excessive formation of acid in the stomach and thereby stopping all chance of pain, gas, sourness or indigestion.

This treatment is not only a preventive but a corrective and acts promptly when pain is felt gives almost immediate relief. Genuine Bisurated Magnesia can be obtained at most any good drug store in tablet powder or tablet form. It does not injure the stomach, is easy and pleasant to use and quite inexpensive.

BAY STATE MADE JOKE BY G. O. P., SAYS FITZ

Under the leadership of the Republican party Massachusetts is fast becoming "a joke," declared John F. Fitzgerald, Democratic candidate for Governor, addressing the Jefferson Club.

"Today," said Mr. Fitzgerald, "papers report that Boston Harbor is filled with vessels loaded with coal with no docks available to unload them, while factories are closed because of the lack of coal. Those same papers report tours is nobody in charge of the harbor to find berths for these vessels but the captain of the police boat Guardian. The Harbor Board, seemingly, has ceased to function. Things have become so bad that vessels are denied entrance to the inner harbor because of the lack of mooring.

"Another situation that shows how badly Massachusetts' interests are being treated at Washington is the failure of the appropriation to purchase the Cape Cod Canal.

"In this time the people of this State should wake up to the realization not stand for the reactionary Republican leadership of the country and publican leadership of Lodge, Coolidge, Weeks, Gillette and Winslow. I have enumerated but these two instances to show the incapacity of Republican leadership. Plenty more will follow as the campaign progresses."

BATES PRESIDENT PRAISES DEBATING

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 21.—President Clifton D. Gray, speaking at the opening of the fall term of Bates College today said that the forthcoming debating season is of unusual interest.

Debating team focuses sharply the attention of American colleges on the effect of intercollegiate debate on the college man's thinking processes. Declaring that Americans admire the British debating methods and the Oxonians' ease of rhetoric, he added that the American method of debate was instrumental in developing citizens of character and conviction.

Who Saw Boy's Plight?

James Fegan, age seventeen, is employed by the Boston American as an office boy and messenger boy. The editor of this newspaper sent the boy "with copy" to the Boston Herald at about 10 o'clock in the evening of September 19th. On his way at the corner of Washington and West streets he came upon a crowd watching the arrest of a man alleged to be under the influence of liquor. The man being arrested was resisting the officer. The boy joined the crowd which was observing the arrest. The crowd followed the officer and the arrested man as they proceeded toward the patrol box.

The boy says that another officer on joining the procession asked him why he was following them and accompanied his question with a blow.

It is not necessary to go into further details except to say that the boy's story is that he was repeatedly struck by this officer and finally arrested and taken to the station house. The officer's story was that the boy was actually trying to make a rescue of the prisoner and was struck by the re-enforcing officer while the boy was on the back of the arresting officer trying to release the prisoner.

We want the truth about this event. If this boy attempted to release a prisoner we do not want to defend him, but if he was brutally and unjustifiably attacked by a big, low-browed "cop," who is more qualified to stick pigs than to keep the peace in a respectable city, we want to know it. In such a case we shall defend our boy to the limit of the law, and shall try to see that the guilty officer is punished according to his deserts.

Will any one who happened to be present and saw any of this performance be kind enough to send their names and addresses. We do not care whether you blame the officer or the boy. We want to know the truth of the story.

Senator Walsh Will Sound the Keynote

He Will Show What the New Republican Tariff Will Cost the People

The President has signed the tariff bill. A great many duties have been levied upon raw materials and to that extent they do not PROTECT but HANDICAP American labor.

Thus, American labor will be handicapped in two ways. The raw materials from which it must produce its finished product will be increased in cost and its sale made so much more difficult. The cost of living will be increased by the increase of the tariff generally and on raw materials particularly.

The Republicans are surely riding to their fall. A worse tariff bill could not well be imagined. It violates the principle of protection, because it has made no pretense of merely equalizing the difference in the cost of labor here and abroad. Labor will suffer from this new violation of the principle of protection by the levying of duties on raw materials which ought to be produced in this country as cheaply as possible in order that we may be able to keep down the cost of manufacturing so that the consumer will be relieved as much as possible of the cost of meeting the difference between wages here and wages abroad.

The consumer also is doubly burdened by this tariff. The tariff upon raw materials raises the price of raw materials and, therefore, raises the cost of manufacturing the finished products. This increased cost in the manufacture of the finished product requires an increase in the tariff to make good the difference between that cost and the cost of manufacturing the same goods abroad. It comes, therefore, entirely out of the pockets of the consumers. The consumer pays the tariff on the raw product and pays the tariff on the finished product. He is also robbed in another way. He is robbed in the cost of living.

When this tariff law comes to be discussed the Republican party will be more sick of it than it became sick of the Payne-Aldrich bill. It will pursue them with more ghostly terrors than the Payne-Aldrich bill pursued Taft and his Republican cohorts ten years ago.

We cannot anticipate what either gentleman will say, but we can guess. Vice-President Coolidge will keep away from the tariff discussion. Senator Walsh will discuss the tariff.

Senator Walsh has distinguished himself in the Senate, among other things, by the industry and ability he has shown in handling the tasks assigned to him in the discussion of the tariff. He will show the people of Massachusetts, unless we are bad at guessing, what it is going to cost them to give the Republican party the privilege of making the country's tariffs.

Unless we are very much mistaken, Senator Walsh is going to pitch the keynote of the campaign throughout the country in his address to the Democratic convention. He will tell the people what they may expect to follow from this tariff. He will tell them how much more it is going to cost them to live, in consequence of this tariff, and it will be a gruesome story.

Extortionate Coal Charges

There Is No Excuse for an Increase of Price Over That of Last Year

We call the attention of Fuel Commissioner Hultman to Mr. James J. Storrow's statement that unless the public is amply alert, it will be robbed in the prices charged for hard coal this Winter by the coal crowd.

From what we have known of Mr. Hultman we take it that he does not need this warning. We give it to him, however, with the purpose of encouraging him in any measures he may have in mind to protect us against extortionate coal charges.

We know that there is no excuse for an increase in the price of coal over the price of last year. We doubt very much if there is any excuse for maintaining the extortionate prices which were maintained last year. The public will not forever go blindly on being robbed by railroads and coal operators, who are often the same parties. Those who do not want to see what is alleged to be Bolshevism grow in this country had better look for the real Bolshevists. They are the coal-owning railroads—the gentlemen in Wall Street and elsewhere, who maintain such a chaos in the coal mining and railroad world and charge its consequences to the public.

Love Lizards Out of Favor

By Winifred Black

"CAKE EATERS," that's what they call the men who drink soda and eat ice cream, and prefer layer cake to ham sandwiches and dearly love a cup of good tea at the proper hour in the afternoon.

They don't care to play football or baseball, and as for track athletics—oh, horrors!

Dancing, ah, that's the diversion, and next to that speeding in a classy racer or a chummy roadster! Parties, flirtations, affairs, matinees, tea, lady-like little picnics, studio parties, with soft lights and weird music—these are the Cake Eaters' paradise.

And there is, some persons declare, a band of Cake Eaters in almost every university in the United States today.

The girls at the Northwestern University have declared a boycott on the Cake Eaters.

"Fifty per cent. of them are spineless weaklings," says Dr. George Stewart, president of the Alumnae.

"They just love a spin," he said, "and oh, how they dote on the fox trot and the toddle and the guinea wiggle!

"Give one of 'em a half-mile dash to make and he'd drop dead at the thought of it, and as for a touchdown or a goal, don't mention anything like that, or a real Cake Eater will faint."

And now the co-eds are going to ostracize the Cake Eaters.

Why, girls, how can you be so cruel, when they are just simply trying to please you?

Imitation is the sincerest flattery, they say, and the Cake Eaters are doing their very best to imitate the girliest of the girls.

Isn't it funny that the girls don't seem to like them after all?

What a perfectly natural instinct it is that makes a woman hate a lady-like man and that fills the soul of a real man with disgust at the sight of a mannish woman.

Good old Mother Nature, what a sensible soul she seems to me, and how calm she is when we try to drive her out of business with our newologies and our oldisms.

Why shouldn't she be calm? She always has the best of it. She's sure to win, no matter how far the fight goes—and she knows it.

It's a comfort to think about it, these days, isn't it?

"Loyal Men of Ulster"

Editor Boston American:

When William John Boyd says "the loyal men of Ulster were responsible for the creation of the Free State," he really means that they caused the partition of Ireland and made a Gibraltar in North East Ulster.

These "loyal men" of North East Ulster, since the day they scabbed the confiscated lands of the native Irish, have never ceased to be the willing tools of English imperialism. They have never helped in the general uplifting of their country, whilst all the time they were partaking of the benefits of the various land and legislative reforms wrung from England with great sacrifice.

It is a significant fact that in every period when the British government showed a desire to give Ireland a modicum of self-government the Orange drums beat furiously. In 1893, when Gladstone brought in a bill to disestablish the Protestant State Church of Ireland, these "Loyalists" threatened to "kick the Queen's crown into the Boyne." In 1833 and 1912, when home rule bills were introduced, also a bill to curb the legislative autocracy of the House of Lords, these "loyal men of Ulster" went on the warpath and hunted the Catholics from the shipyards with revolvers, bolts and nuts.

Editor Boston American:

Much inspired propaganda is being disseminated by Republican newspapers and by certain individuals to the effect that the Democratic senatorial and gubernatorial candidates must repudiate Joseph C. Pelletier if they hope to be victorious.

One organ advises both Mr. Fitzgerald and Mr. Gaston that this will be necessary whether or no their personal preferences are against it.

Let both Gaston and Fitzgerald read again the figures of the primary. Let them remember that the man who, temporarily under a shadow, ran with the Democratic nomination for district attorney of Suffolk County by 25,000 plurality is a force to be reckoned with. THOMAS J. CASSIDY.

Moneyed Interest

Editor Boston American:

Since the Declaration of Independence we owe allegiance to no king; but have become obedient subjects to many moneyed potentates. We have no birth aristocracy; but we have a plutocracy which seeks through marriage to ornament itself with an oriole of nobility. The earth, however, still revolves around its axis and around the sun, creating different seasons of the year. Time brings changes, and a change MUST and WILL surely come.

DO YOU WORRY ABOUT THINGS THAT MAY NEVER HAPPEN?

Are you always worrying for fear something is going to happen to you?

You may die early in life, you may lose your job, some of your investments may prove poor, your house may burn or you may run down some person while you are out in your auto—none of these things may come to pass.

Could worrying stop any one of the ills you conjure up?

The misfortune a man actually meets is usually of a nature he does not expect. Put that down.

Why picture a lot of unpleasant possibilities and then keep the picture hanging in your mind's plain sight all the time.

Certainly you cannot help matters by worrying about them.

When driving a car you have often noticed that a hill appears much steeper at a distance, and the actual climbing is much easier than it looks before you have tried it.

Similar is his experience who looks ahead at the steep inclines before reaching a definite goal ahead.

The Nantucket steamed in from her Summer cruise and fired a salute to the commandant of the navy yard. "Ah!" said GENERAL LOGAN'S friends on the Crete, "they're saluting the General. How nice." "Ah!" said FRANK DAVIS on the Dorothy Bradford, "the navy is saluting the Maritime Association. A very graceful compliment."

JUDGE L. ROGER WENTWORTH of the Somerville district court, who died a few days ago, was a generous giver, whose gifts were known only to the recipient, but there is one case where the beneficiary up to the present time is unaware that the man who paid his fine and allowed him his freedom was none other than the judge who imposed it. A young man brought in on default fled and acted contemptuously toward the court. He was fined $5. Unable to pay, he was placed in jail. Some time after court adjourned, PROBATION OFFICER MT. ROY received a telephone call from a man who inquired about the case and asked if hard treatment had not been given to the boy. The man then asked MR. MULROY to call at an office in Union square, which he did, and found there JUDGE WENTWORTH, who paid the $5 fine.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON KNOWLEDGE

By Garrett P. Serviss

"WHAT gives the atoms in matter the energy to keep constant motion?" asks a reader.

Speaking of atoms "in" matter instead of atoms "of" matter indicates that he may have an incorrect understanding of the atomic theory. The atoms are not something mingled in something else called matter, but they are the constituent parts of matter itself. Without atoms there would be no matter. This is not changed by the fact, discovered recently, that atoms are themselves composed of smaller things called electrons.

Science does not account for the ultimate origin of the energy that keeps the electrons revolving, or the atoms themselves vibrating. The atoms are full of energy because they are composed of, electrons endowed with constant motion. The electrons seem to be composed of electricity, or electric charges and it is suggested that electricity and energy are somehow identical.

Electricity, then, may be an original form of motion, and so motion itself would be the basis of everything that moves. But this is not sound knowledge. As soon as men put their heads into these depths they become intoxicated with speculation. Not only does science not account for the origin of energy and motion, but it is probable that human science never can render such an accounting. We have no reason to assume, as many persons appear to do, that the state of being in motion is any less a "natural" condition of matter, or of the constituents of matter, than the state of being without motion. In fact, it is most probable that motion is universal in some form and that nothing whatever is at rest.

We find the planets revolving around the sun in elliptical orbits. We know that they are drawn toward the sun, and yet, instead of falling into the sun, they travel ceaselessly around it. Mathematically, we can account for their continued motion in their orbits and their changes of motion in different parts of the orbits solely by considering the force that draws them direct toward the sun. But there is a tangential impulse concerned, i. e., a force at right angles to the sun's attraction, which must originally have been imparted, but how we do not know, and for the mere purposes of calculating orbital motion we do not need to know.

We may assume, as 'e usually done, that the tangential motion originated in a genera' revolution of the entire nebulous mass out of which the sun and its planets were formed by condensation and separation. But, although that carries us back a step, it gives no final information concerning the origin of the motion. So within the atoms, the electrons, or charges of negative electricity, appear to be in a revolution around a nucleus, which is sometimes likened to the sun surrounded by its revolving planets.

By assuming that the nucleus is composed of, or furnished with, a charge of positive electricity, it is possible to account mathematically for the revolution around it of the negative charges, moving in miniature orbits. But, so to the first origin of all the energy thus locked up, as it were, inside the atoms, even speculation is able to give no ultimate account.

The fact seems to be that all human knowledge is sustained, or buoyed up like a balloon, by a medium of a composition so rare that it escapes analysis.

A Boss With an Office Full of Homely Typists Doesn't Have So Many Arguments With His Wife

Several New York employers have fired their pretty stenographers so that they can get more work out of the clerks.

Of course, the boss doesn't let his beautiful secretary go because he keeps her in his private office, where nobody can look at her but himself.

He hires homely girls for the outside office. He figures that if the clerks want to look at beautiful things they can go to Yellowstone National Park or Yosemite Valley.

With a homely girl sitting next to him, the bookkeeper is naturally going to keep his eyes on the ledger.

But with a pretty blonde right beside him he gets so excited he can't balance the books.

It isn't the blonde's fault; she doesn't know she's pretty. That's why she's looking into four or five mirrors all the time.

She wouldn't believe just one mirror.

The boss doesn't want the clerks watching the clock all day, especially when the clocks are in the stenographer's stocking.

One cross-eyed clerk had the boss fooled. He was watching the pretty typist most of the time, but his employer thought he was looking into the filing cabinet.

With a bunch of swell-looking stenographers in an office, the clerks want to flirt all the time, and they can't keep their minds on their business. Still, some clerks do, because flirting is their business.

But a boss with an office full of homely typists doesn't have so many arguments with his wife.

The only way a man can get hold of a lot of homely stenographers is to advertise for some pretty ones.

Of course, a lot of employers hate to have beautiful girls around, but they're willing to sacrifice themselves.

Pretty dames have to eat, and the boss thinks they might as well eat with him.

The boss where she works takes her to lunch.

LYDIA CODMAN SUES ALFRED FOR DIVORCE

SOCIAL LEADER AS HAPPY WIFE AND WOULD-BE DIVORCEE

HUB SOCIAL LEADER CHARGES HUSBAND WITH DESERTION

Mrs. Lydia Codman of No. 3 Arlington street, Boston, today began suit for divorce.

In the bill filed by her attorneys, Story, Thorndike, Palmer & Dodge, Mrs. Codman alleges that her husband, Alfred Codman, deserted her September 1, 1917, and has since then maintained a home in New York, failing to provide for her.

The Codmans are among the best known families in Boston. In the roster of the Social Register they are listed on a par with the Cabots, the Lowells and the Higginsons.

Friends of Mrs. Codman, who before her marriage was Lydia Eliot, are not surprised at the action she has begun.

In her suit Mrs. Codman asks for alimony and the custody of her four sons—Alfred, 20 years old; Eliot, 18; Daniel, 16, and Samuel, 14.

Her friends in society were astonished recently to find that Mrs. Codman had gone into business. First notice of it was given when a neatly lettered little sign was seen swinging from the door of Mrs. Codman's home on Arlington street.

It read:

"Lydia Codman, 3 Arlington street."

It was thought then that Mrs. Codman, following the fad of the day for wealthy women to interest themselves in business, had opened the gown shop as an avenue to avoid boredom.

BECOMES DRESSMAKER.

Now, it appears, her friends realize that the move was made so that she could continue to give her children the education that they were receiving. Alfred and Eliot were in the exclusive St. Mark's school, and she proposed to keep them there. Not receiving any income from her husband, she decided to earn it.

Mrs. Codman's friends came and rang the bell—the bell that they had rung so many times before when there were cards for dinners or teas or receptions. A smiling little maid, blue-gowned and quite correct as to manner, opened the door.

Up the heavily carpeted stairs went society, to the drawing room they had visited so many times before. There they found the answer to the sign on the door. The entire drawing room floor was transformed. It was now the drawing room and salon of Lydia Codman, dressmaker.

CODMAN HARVARD GRAD

In no town at all Mrs. Codman establisher one of the most fashionable and popular shops in town.

Alfred Codman is a graduate of Harvard and a member of many of the best clubs of Harvard, including the Harvard Club and the Tennis and Racquet Club. The wedding of Codman to Miss Eliot, one of the dashing debutantes of the season, took place at Nahant in 1871.

No charges are made other than the desertion and failure to provide, and it is assumed that the separation was caused by incompatability.

Yes, They Love One Another in Congress

Washington, Sept. 21.—"I ask unanimous consent to address the House for two minutes on the work and achievement of the present Congress," said Representative Mondell, Republican floor leader, yesterday.

"Would not one minute be sufficient?" inquired Representative Garrett, acting Democratic floor leader.

"I think the gentleman from Wyoming should be allowed one hour to discuss the non-work of Congress," interrupted Representative Meyer London, Socialist, of New York.

Mondell is trying to be a Senator and is ambitious to put his best foot forward.

BROKERS FACE HEAVY LOSS ON SOFT COAL

American brokers who hoped to profit by their country's hardship during the coal strike, are doomed to heavy financial losses.

Many steamers had been ordered to return from England to this country laden with coal and are now on the high seas. The United States government has just decided that there is no need for further shipments of coal from England. Now financial distress faces the speculators and brokers involved.

GIRL HIT BY GOLF CLUB; IS KILLED

Racine, Wis., Sept. 21.—A golf stick swung back by a devote of the game, demonstrating to several young women in the lawn of a residence, resulted in the death of Miss Evelyn Calnan, a school teacher. She stepped up behind Allan Simpson, assistant district attorney, while he was showing a driver stroke and the head of the club struck her behind the ear. She lived only fifteen minutes.

STATE TO PROBE 12 BROKERS

Move Under Blue Sky Law Against Firms Under New York Ban

An investigation to determine whether the twelve Boston brokerage houses whose wire and ticker privileges were taken away by the New York Stock Exchange should now be prevented from doing further business in this State was started today by the State Department of Public Utilities.

The department sent to the New York Stock Exchange a formal request for the facts which caused the wire rights of the offending firms to be cancelled.

"Bucketing" was alleged to be the cause, but the New York Exchange, following custom, refused to give out any details. It is interested alone in the relations between the houses and the exchange and has little or no interest, it is said, in the effect of the dealing between the brokerage house and the public.

All the twelve firms are registered in this State under the Blue Sky law. Their licenses can be taken away for cause. Only one of the twelve is a member of the New Boston Stock Exchange. Five trade on the Curb and the other six have no exchange connections, so far as is known at the State House. One of them, J. H. Fitzpatrick & Co., was petitioned into bankruptcy in September. The other eleven are:

G. A. Eastman & Co., T. J. Ducy & Co., J. R. Kielis & Co., W. L. Jarvis & Co., A. C. Albee & Co., J. W. O'Mealey & Co., C. P. Dow & Co., Wilson Hooker & Co., Edward Brady & Co., C. F. Eaton & Co., and Temple H. Fay & Co.

STATE TO8 YEARS IN PAYROLL ROBBERY

Roxbury Taxi Driver Convicted at Lawrence in Barrett Holdup

Lawrence, Sept. 21.—His alibi upset by State testimony, Michael J. Kelley, taxicab driver of Smith street, Roxbury, was found guilty by an Essex county jury today of being accessory before and after the $1,700 Barrett payroll robbery in Lynn on May 7, 1919.

Judge Flynn sentenced Kelley to State prison for eight to ten years.

Frederick G. Barrett of J. S. Barrett Sons Co., Lynn leather dealers, was robbed of the payroll by three men in Kelley's car. Identification of the car led to trial of Kelley. His alibi was that he was engaged at Boston North Station to drive three men to Lynn but was held up at gun point between Salem and Lynn, was kidnapped into a second car and was driven into woods and deserted four miles from Lynn, while the bandits drove off with his car and committed the robbery.

BRITAIN ARRANGES TO PAY DEBT INTEREST

STAGING DROPS, MAN BADLY HURT

William A. Norton, 43, of No. 3 Fountain Square, was seriously injured when a staging on which he was working collapsed, dropping him to the street. CITY PROVIDES FOR ROTTEN EGG DISPOSAL

A committee of Boston egg dealers held a conference with Mayor Curley and Health Commissioner Mahoney today relative to the disposition of rotten eggs under the order of the Health Department which requires that they be treated with carbolic acid in metal containers and, when used for tanning leather, marked "Eggs for mechanical purposes only—not for food."

Mayor Curley said after the conferences that new arrangements when made will make it difficult for rotten eggs to find their way into bakeries, as they have so frequently in the past.

The egg dealers agreed to jointly maintain a truck and metal can equipment, which shall be the only vehicle in which rotten eggs can be transported in the city. The Mayor agreed to furnish special equipment at the city dump on Atlantic and Northern avenues to dispose of such eggs as are not disposed of to tanners and other mechanical users of albumen.

To Preserve the Last Message of Mine Victims

Sacramento, Cal., Sept. 21—The State Industrial Accident Commission has been instructed to cut away and preserve that portion of the stone in the mine drift on which William Fessel burned with his lamp the only message left by the forty-seven miners who were victims of the tragedy at the Argonaut mine. Clarence E. Jarvis, member of the State Board of Control, said the stone would be kept by the State in memory of the victims.

The words written on the stone, Jarvis said, were: "Gas getting bad. 2 o'clock." Below the figure "4" had been burned and a portion of the letter "O." Fessel is believed to have succumbed to the gas at that point.

COMMITTEE OFF TO ARRANGE CUP RACES

NAZARRO DIDN'T GET SUMMONS IN 'NOISE' CASE

Michele Nazarro, professional bondsman, entertained police officials and close friends at his home on fashionable Metropolitan avenue, Roslindale. There was a band and everything.

Misses Mabel, Georgia and Grace Callowhill, scions of one of Boston's first families and nearby residents, objected, even to the extent of summoning the police from Captain Clint Bowley's precinct to preserve quiet.

The cops came and they went, after they had glimpsed "Super" Michael Crowley, a few judges and others, and so a summons was served on Michael to appear in West Roxbury Court today to answer to charges of disturbing the peace.

Mike paced the corridors of Pemberton Square Courthouse, blissfully ignorant of waiting witnesses and police officers and lawyers out in West Roxbury.

Said a friend in the department, "Mike, they want you for default out in West Roxbury."

"Gee," said the bail commissioner, "that's funny. I never got any summons."

Explanation—Michele's legal residence is 153 Richmond street, North End.

Ford Gets Coal, Plant Reopens Tomorrow

Detroit, Sept. 21.—Henry Ford will open his plants tomorrow, it was announced officially today.

This was made known after a long-distance telephone conversation with Edsel Ford at Napoleon, O., who stated that revocation of Order 25 by the Interstate Commerce Commission would make it possible for the Ford Company to get coal and re-open at once.

The Cambridge Ford Plant, which still is open, will be closed a week from Saturday for one week only, it is announced. The wait is caused by lack of parts from Detroit.

WIDOW OF WARGIVES UP SON

Youngster Won Governor's Cup in Baby Parade; Childless Couple Are Happy

New York, Sept. 21.—A fourteen-months-old boy, born into the environments of cheap boarding houses and dirty city streets, by a whirl of the wheel of fate has become heir to several million dollars, four large homes, motor cars and a retinue of servants.

Paul Carewe, who won the Governor's cup at the recent Asbury Park baby parade, is to be adopted by Arthur Hudson Marks, who made a fortune in development of the rubber industry, and Mrs. Marks, once Lady Lydia Talbot of England and a former opera singer.

The boy was taken by his mother, Mrs. Laura Carewe, to Locke Ledge, the Summe. home of the Marks family, of more than 500 acres, near Croton Lake, N. Y.

Widowed by the war and earning her living as a nurse, Mrs. Carewe had found it impossible to care for and educate her boy as she felt he deserved, and had made an appeal to which the childless Mrs. Marks responded eagerly.

GIVES UP HER BOY.

Mrs. Carewe had no intention of leaving her baby at Locke Ledge, but the mother was so struck with the loveliness of the place that she left him there, agreeing to his adoption and swearing she could never look at her boy again.

"He will be happy here," she said simply as she started to leave. Then she broke down. "I can't leave him —but I must—I must! I shall never see him again, for if I did I wouldn't be able to stand it."

Then she drew herself up with quiet dignity and left the house. She didn't turn her head as the motor car, bound for the station, sped down the drive.

While her son is dominating eight negro servants, and any of the forty-eight other employes of the place who camp near him, he is still "on approval," but it was said he would be adopted.

CARLOAD OF TOYS.

Although Mrs. Marks has been married twice before and her husband once, Paul, if adopted, will be the heir to both their fortunes. Mrs. Marks, originally Lydia Locke, then Lady Reginald Talbot of England and then Mrs. Orville Harrold, has had no children. Mr. Marks has a son, twenty-six, but he has been provided for by a settlement with the first Mrs. Marks, and will not inherit, it was explained.

Locke Ledge is said to be worth more than $500,000. A feature is a $100,000 organ. In addition Mr. Marks has a place in Akron, O., said to be worth $800,000, one in Marblehead, Mass., and a town house at No. 110 East Eightieth street.

The prospective parents have sent to New York for toys and have had a special brand of milk, on which he has been brought up by his real mother, sent from Ossining, seven miles away. He has never worn shoes or stockings and his mother pleaded that he be not allowed to become "soft."

"How do we know he will not be Chief Justice of the Supreme Court?" his mother-to-be said.

"He'll go to Harvard," rejoined Mr. Marks. "I'm going to make that little fellow a tennis player. Just look at that chest and arms."

KEEPS MOTHER'S RELIGION.

The boy will be brought up in the Roman Catholic faith, as Mrs. Marks is a Catholic. Mr. Marks, a Methodist, will leave the religious training of the child to his wife.

The boy's father, who had fought in France as an army lieutenant, returned broken in health by exposure. Four months before his son was born he died.

PAY WHAT YOU LIKE ON NEW JITNEY LINE

Foxboro, Sept. 21.—The "New Civilization" is coming. Yea, Oliver. And if it operates in general like it has started with the "Conscience Fare Jitney" it will be a sure fire hit with riders on the Boston Elevated.

Picture riders setting the amount of their fare. Well, that's what they do on the "Conscience Line." Conscience is the only guide.

The jitney does a lucrative business, apparently most of the patrons having good, generous consciences. Anyhow, they're doing so well that a rival concern is suing "The New Civilization," a group of serious thinkers who backed the venture.

"The New Civilization" is a group of persons who have agreed that their "inmost desire and greatest ambition is to learn how to live without an omission."

And to quote their own motto: "By thinking and acting in concerted manner, and according to well defined fundamentals and principles of action and life, the new civilization evolved will be such as will enable all peoples to live healthily, successfully and happily."

This group is not a secret cult nor holier than thou organization, and the only requisite for membership is the expressed intention of an applicant of co-operating with his or her neighbors in learning how to live better and correctly.

KAISER'S KIN OBJECT TO MARRIAGE

Doorn, Sept. 21.—The former Crown Prince of Germany and other members of the Hohenzollern family strongly oppose the second marriage of the former Kaiser, according to information secured from a source close to the former ruler.

The relations between the Crown Prince and his father have lately become very strained, it is stated.

The Crown Prince, over a fortnight ago, instead of staying with his brother at the Doorn castle, installed himself at Amerongen castle with Count Bentinck.

The strong opposition on the part of the Crown Prince and other members of the imperial family may be due, it is stated, to financial reasons, rather than sentiments of pride and caste. Those in a position to know say that the former Emperor's sons, and especially the Crown Prince, reduced to leading a very simple life, by their father's financial disaster, may be afraid that the marriage will make their situation worse.

They also fear further complication and contents in the event of the death of the Kaiser, when his personal fortune, estimated at $20,000,000, must be divided.

The ruling was made in the case of John Miller of Springvale, who applied for citizenship at Alfred, where the chief justice is presiding over the September term.

"Are you a drinking man?" asked the court.

"I am not," replied the applicant.

"Have you been drinking today?"

"No, sir."

DENIES HE WAS OFFICER WHO HIT BOY

Patrolman James E. Cusick, Officer 425, attached to Lagrange street police station, entered the Boston American office today and made earnest denial that he is the policeman who arrested and severely beat young James Fegan, Boston American office boy, in Washington street near Avery Tuesday night. Patrolman Cusick said:

"I was not even present at the time Fegan was arrested. I was on traffic duty in front of the Tremont Theatre that evening when the boy was brought to Lagrange street police station. I had nothing to do with the arrest.

Patrolman Cusick

"I returned to the station house at 11:20 that night for house duty. I go down stairs to the cell room at 11:30 at night to examine prisoners to see that they are all right. As I started down I was directed to bring up a prisoner named Fegan from cell 11 because someone had called at the station house to see him.

"I called Fegan out and had him go upstairs to the desk. He said nothing to me. I did not see any marks on him. I knew nothing of the case. He talked at the desk with a man. Then he was put in the signal room on the same floor because his father was coming to see him. I was in the signal room operating the tape that records duty calls.

"In the signal room Fegan looked at me and at my hat number and said: '425—you're the fellow who assaulted me up there.' I didn't know what he meant. I thought he was joking. But he said: 'You're the one.'

"But he is wrong. I was not even present when he was arrested. And I wouldn't assault any boy."

"The New Civilization" is an organization centred in Foxboro. The group of individuals are preaching and practicing an ideal condition which, they hope, will eventually make the world a better place in which to live. One of the first steps of the cult was to start a "conscience jitney" line, the rider paying whatever fare his conscience may dictate. Here are shown Edgar H. Bristol, originator of the new plan, and a "conscience bus." All aboard! (Photo by International News Reel.)

Frenchman Finds a Way to Tell Sex in Hen's Eggs

Paris, Sept. 21.—A discovery by which, he says, it is possible to foretell the sex of chickens before the eggs are placed under the hen is announced by Paul Lienhardt of Nancy.

Lienhardt declares he observed that male chickens were heavier than females of the same age and breed. He followed this peculiarity down to the time the chickens were hatched, he found it held true.

This indicated that the eggs producing males were heavier than those producing females.

Sorting the eggs, taking care never to mix the breeds, he obtained from the setting of the heavy ones a big majority of males.
